VACATION DAYS ARE ENDED

Typical of the feelings of approximately 10,000 school children in Marion city and county are those expressed on the faces of the two frowning urchins in The Associated Press photo above. Farewell to summer fun, to fishing, swimming and general good times is running through their minds as they see the bad news on the drug store window. Marion city and St. Mary grade pupils will go back to school tomorrow and county pupils will return today and tomorrow mostly.

10,000 Hear School Bells Call in City And County

Rural Buildings Opened Yesterday and Today While Marion and St. Mary Open Tomorrow.

With county schools opening yesterday and today and city public and parochial schools preparing to open Wednesday morning, nearly 10,000 boys and girls will have begun their school year by noon Wednesday.

Supt. C. A. Hudson of the city schools announced the list of teacher assignments today and held a conference with the teachers and principals this afternoon at Harding High school.

An increase in high school enrollment but probably a decrease in the elementary schools is anticipated by Mr. Hudson, who said the condition is one expected to prevail throughout the country. Population growth and increase has not kept pace with the increase from 1910 to 1930, accounting for the decrease in the grades, and working conditions are keeping more young people in high school, he explained.

County Supt. D. T. Mills said he did not expect very much difference in the county school enrollments this year. Reports from county schools will be made to the county office by the end of the week and it is expected the total enrollment will be about 2,900.

400 Start at St. Mary

About 400 grade school pupils are expected to begin their studies at St. Mary parochial school Wednesday, and an additional 170 high school pupils expected when high school classes start next Monday. The enrollment is expected to be about the same as last year.

The list of approximately 200 city teachers assigned today, includes 27 new teachers, and three teachers who will fill additional posts.

New assignments include an addition at the Thomas A. Edison Junior high school where the shop program will be extended, a new member of the Harding high school commercial department and an extra teacher at the Central Junior high school to do special work with a slower group of pupils. The additions, which have been needed in the school program for several years, were made possible this year through somewhat improved financial conditions, Supt. Hudson said.

Two positions remained to be filled today, one a teacher of physical education and social science at the Edison building, and the other an elementary music teacher to succeed Miss Eleanor Barnard who resigned recently to accept a position in a Pennsylvania normal school. Mr. Hudson was considering several applications today and said he expected to have the vacancies filled within the week.

Opening of the 1937-1938 school year marks the beginning of R. H. Marshall's twenty-ninth year as principal of Harding high school and his thirty-fourth year in the public school system.

Mr. Marshall said today the high school pupils will go through the regular schedule Wednesday, except that periods will be short.

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 7 — Clarence Hiatt, 35, of Columbus, was fatally injured today in an automobile collision east of Columbus on the Johnstown pike.

HITLER VOICES CLOSE TIE WITH ITALY AND JAPS

Vows To Fight Communism in East or West To Save "World Civilization."

ASKS FOR COLONIES AGAIN

Cites Need for Food and Labels Other Powers' Stand Incomprehensible.

By The Associated Press

NURNBERG, GERMANY, Sept. 7—Adolf Hitler stressed Nazi Germany's solidarity with both Japan and Italy today—against "Communist confusion" in east and west.

His annual proclamation, read to the Nazi congress by Adolf Wagner, Bavarian Nazi leader, also made an emphatic reiteration of Germany's demand for return of her war-lost colonies; and called the attitude of other powers toward this demand "incomprehensible."

Italy, Japan and Germany are bound together in a community of interest, he said, for all three are committed to "a defense of world civilization against attacks which break out today in Spain; tomorrow in the Orient; perhaps the day after tomorrow, somewhere else." He added:

"The natural community of interests between National Socialist Germany and Fascist Italy has in recent months shown itself more and more an element in defense of Europe against chatoic imbecility."

Reviews Achievements

"Our (anti-Communist) agreement with Japan serves the same fundamental mission—to stand together in defense of world civilization."

His proclamation was a review of the achievements of his regime since he came to power and an outline of his new objectives in the coming year.

The crisis now troubling the world, said der fuehrer, is no mere controversy of "boundaries between peoples and states, but a question of maintenance or destruction of mankind's social order and civilization itself."

Indirectly, he referred to both the Sino-Japanese and the Spanish conflicts as arising out of "further attempts to spread Communist confusion in east and west."

Food Main Problem

Hitler admitted frankly that Germany's chief worry was her food supply. He said:

"A German territory without colonies is too small to guarantee unhampered, certain and continuous nutrition to our people."

He declared it "intolerable" that the third reich should be dependent year after year on the accident of a good or a bad harvest. This situation, he said, is such an unanswerable argument for the return of German colonies that "the attitude of the other powers toward this demand is simply incomprehensible."

Despite these difficulties, said der fuehrer, the National Socialist regime has accomplished these things:

1. "The Versailles treaty is dead."
2. "Germany is free."
3. "Our military power guarantees our freedom."

SCHOOL PURCHASES BOOST SALES TAX

Income $8,239 Representing Business of $274,635.

Boosted by purchases of trousers and shirts for Johnny and dresses for Mary for the opening of school, sales tax receipts reached a new high for recent months last week with a total of $8,239.05. In the previous week only $4,781.05 or $3,358.01 less was collected.

Basing estimates on the three per cent tax, retail sales represented by the stamps sold are $274,635. The average week's stamp receipts this year are approximately $6,000, representing $200,000 in retail sales.

A year ago the sales tax receipts for the week were $6,909.67 or $1,329.19 less than last week's, according to records of County Treasurer Homer D. Cole.

Record Number of Ohio Youths Off to College

Some Schools Enroll More Than in 1929 as Sign of Returned Prosperity.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 7— An army of young men and women began packing their belongings today for one of the greatest advances on Ohio educational institutions in the state's history.

The tramp of thousands of students marching to classes will symbolize a return of the prosperity era to numerous colleges and universities, while some schools will exceed the enrollment of 1929's halcyon days.

A survey of 18 colleges and universities by the Associated Press showed that all expected registration to surpass last year's, while three—Ohio State, Ohio university and Akron university—predicted the greatest enrollment in their history.

Some schools have almost reached their capacity.

Stuyvesant hall dormitory for first year women at Ohio Wesleyan university will be filled for the first time since it opened six years ago.

Miami university has stopped enrolling women and has room for only a few more men.

The increases in enrollment at other schools run as high as 25 per cent.

Ohio State, largest school in Ohio, expects 13,5000 students, as compared with the record-breaking registration of 12,507 last year.

Ohio university is looking for 3,000 students, as against last year's 2,769.

Akron university figures that if it limits its freshman class to 450, the total enrollment will be 1,300. The 1936-37 figure was 1,475.

Mount Union College is prepared for an increase of 10 per cent, which would give it approximately 600 students.

With its registration of freshman women exceeding that of men, 547 to 197, Ohio Wesleyan officials anticipate a total enrollment of 800, as against 848 last year.

Kent's registrations so far total 2,000. Last year they numbered 2,776.

The University of Dayton expects a gain of 25 per cent, which would make its enrollment about 1,000.

More applications than last year have reported at Western Reserve university, which had 10,000 students in 1930, and at Case School of Applied Science.

BOWER WINS CLUB GOLF CROWN ON 36TH GREEN

Defeats G. E. Darnell by One Hole in Hotly Contested Match in Championship Tournament.

K. M. Bower won the Marion Country club golf championship Sunday in a match with G. E. Darnell that went into the records as one of the most hotly contested title matches in the club's history. It was Mr. Bower's fourth victory in club championship matches since 1929.

Mr. Bower won the 36-hole finals, one up, after he and Darnell alternately took the lead in the early part of the match and ran a neck-and-neck finish on the last half dozen holes.

The gallery of approximately 50 persons following the finalists fell into a hushed silence as the contenders ended the thirty-fifth hole tied. The championship was at stake in the final hole.

Both men placed their first shots well down the fairway on the par-four No. 9 hole, and their second shots carried them to the apron of the green. Mr. Bower chipped to within 10 feet of the pin, Mr. Darnell's chip shot went 12 feet from the hole.

With the championship resting on the putting, Mr. Bower's ball rolled on the rim of the cup and dropped in. Mr. Darnell's put also hit the rim of the cup, but rolled away from it.

At the end of the first nine holes Sunday morning, Mr. Bower was two up. At the end of 15, he was one up as the men recessed for luncheon. At 27 holes, Mr. Bower was three up. Mr. Darnell then took the next four holes to overcome Mr. Bower's lead and stand one up. They halved the next two holes, leaving Mr. Darnell one up. Mr. Bower won the thirty-fourth, tying the players. They split the thirty-fifth, leading up to the all-important thirty-sixth hole.

The finalists played under the dual handicaps of strong wind and a damp course, contributing to scores for both that were above their season averages. In the 18 holes played in the morning, Mr. Bower shot an 83, Mr. Darnell 85. In the afternoon, Mr. Bower had an 84, Mr. Darnell 83.

Don Uhl was the defending club champion. He was eliminated in the semi-final round by Mr. Bower. Sixteen club members participated in the championship tournament this year. The club cup will be presented to Mr. Bower at a party.

Mr. Bower also won the blind bogey tournament that featured yesterday's holiday play at the club. His bogey-tourney score was 81. Other awards were won as follows: average bogey, E. C. Dee and Judge Hector S. Young; average gross, Millard Hunt and George Wright, most fours, G. E. Darnell and Pat Maloney; most fives, Clifford Rowley; most sixes, W. K. Davis and R. T. Lewis; most sevens, E. Weiner, Phil Guthery and F. Brichter.

Stolen Dies May Cripple Factory Work

Steel Plant Theft Threatens Operation of Two Assembly Lines.

Theft of copper dies valued at $500 Sunday night may cause a shutdown of two assembly lines of about 60 men at the Defiance Pressed Steel Co., officials of the company reported to police today. The resultant loss of production during the three or four days during which the lines may have to be suspended would cost the company another $500, according to F. E. Mattocks, maintenance foreman.

To the thief or thieves the material it sold as junk is worth only $5 or $6, Mr. Mattocks said.

The theft is believed to have occurred Sunday night when the plant was in operation. The dies were made of copper and measured approximately three inches square and one inch thick. Fourteen sets of two dies each, which were to have been used on assembly lines for production of automobile heaters, were taken. They had not been attached to stamping machines but were in cases nearby.

The dies are interchangeable and several of different patterns can be used on the same stamping machine, Mr. Mattocks said.

In addition to the dies, several feet of copper tubing with a steel rod through the center were stolen.

Police today were making a search of all junk yards in this vicinity in an attempt to locate the missing equipment. If it is not found, it will require three or four days to make new ones for resumption of production, Mr. Mattocks said.

$100,000 IN TAXES YET DUE IN COUNTY

Saturday at 4 p. m. will be the closing time for payment of real estate taxes in the June collection, County Treasurer Homer D. Cole warned today, saying approximately $100,000 is outstanding that should be paid. The collection for the last week was $41,895.44, bringing the total since June 1 to $478,281.71.

During the previous week the collection was $29,576.67.

Mr. Cole said there are approximately 300 Whittemore contracts on which payments are due before the collection closes and if the payments are not made, the contracts will be defaulted. Both current and delinquent tax bills are included in the $100,000 which Mr. Cole estimates as being outstanding.

The treasurer's office will be open from 8 a. m. to 4 p. m. daily this week with no closing for the noon hour.

There will be no extension of time for the payment and a penalty will be invoked after Saturday, he said.

LABOR ORATORS ENVISION MORE POLITICAL POWER

Richberg Tells Duluth Audience Unions Are on Way to Control of Government in Interest of All.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7—Labor day oratory, hailing the American workman's economic gains, echoed today a keynote of a greater voice in government for him in the future.

Donald R. Richberg, former NRA administrator, told a Duluth, Minn., audience that labor was on the way to control of the government.

"Labor in all the march in America," he said. "Due to a control of the government in the interest of only one class of people, but by the control of government and for labor by in the interest of all the people."

LONE GUNMAN ROBS BANK AT WOODVILLE

Unmasked Bandit Flees West on U. S. 20 After Taking $1,500.

By The Associated Press

TOLEDO, O., Sept. 7—A gunman robbed the Woodville, O., State Savings bank of $1,500 today. He fled west on U. S. route 20.

Three employes, A. W. Emch, cashier, F. W. Kell, assistant cashier, and Alma Soldan, bookkeeper, were in the bank when the bandit, unmasked, entered.

They were compelled to lie on the floor while the well-dressed gunman scooped the money out of the till and fled to his car parked in a nearby side street. The car, bearing a Michigan license, sped westward.

Ohio state highway patrol officers and Lucas county and Wood county deputy sheriffs surrounded the district.

The bank was held up by two men Dec. 14, 1934, and $10,000 taken and again on April 24, 1935, when $1,100 was obtained.

Woodville is in Sandusky county, about 20 miles southeast of Toledo.

This is the third time Mr. Emch and Mr. Kell have been held up and the second time for Miss Soldan.

Seven depositors who entered the bank during the holdup were compelled to join the bank employes on the floor.

The robber, armed with a shotgun, took his time and consumed 15 minutes in committing the crime.

Your Health

BY DR. R. S. COPELAND

Short Breath.

As we grow older we notice that severe exertion and prolonged exercise is difficult. Even the simple climbing of familiar stairs may cause shortness of breath. This is a condition we rarely notice in our youth.

Shortness of breath, or "dyspnoea", as the doctors call it, is a sign of some importance. It is a common symptom, usually disregarded or accepted as something trivial. But there is no denying that persistent dyspnoea may be sent as a warning. For example, it may indicate some disturbance of the heart. Do not misunderstand me—I do not mean that shortness of breath after exertion necessarily indicates heart disease. But what I wish to make clear is this: If you are troubled more and more with shortness of breath after the slightest exercise, it is well that you consult your doctor. It may be a sign of some minor disorder, one which will speedily respond to care and medication.

During the World war it was common to notice dyspnoea among the soldiers in the front lines. Under such circumstances it could be easily traced to strain, excessive fatigue and apprehension. In civilian life it is common to find dyspnoea among persons who suffer from severe emotional strain, worry, fear or any other physical or mental upset.

The sufferer may complain of a feeling of uneasiness or distress around the heart. He may become convinced he surely has some serious heart disease. In all probability all he needs is rest and relaxation.

Of course, shortness of breath in a child or a young adult is a more serious symptom. It must never be ignored. But it is much more common in adults and especially elderly persons. If the ankles become swollen and particularly if there is any pain or discomfort associated with the shortness of breath, a visit to the doctor is extremely important.

Hardening of the arteries, high blood pressure or weakness of the heart, so frequently encountered in elderly persons, is a common cause for shortness of breath. Individuals afflicted this way should be restricted in their activity and placed on a simple and nutritious diet. If other and more prominent symptoms are present, it may become necessary to confine the patient to bed.

If this confinement is advised, do not accept it as meaning that you have a serious and hopeless condition. Bear in mind that only by complete rest in bed is the heart given an opportunity to rest and restore its strength. It is a safety measure that should not be neglected if it is advised.

SUNDAY SERVICE CLOSES UNION CHURCH WORSHIP

Rev. E. T. Waring Preaches Final Sermon of Summer Worship Program at Salem Evangelical.

A Labor Day service Sunday [illegible] at the Salem Evangelical and Reformed church brought to a close what Marion ministers consider one of the most successful series of summer union services in several years.

The church was filled to capacity for the service, at which Dr. Rev. E. T. Waring of Epworth M. E. church spoke on "The Blessing of Necessity."

Before the union young people's service preceding the worship hour, officers of the City Christian Endeavor People's union were elected for the coming year. The Central Christian church young people were awarded the banner for having the largest per cent of attendance during the season.

Paul Ebert Is President

Officers elected are Paul Ebert of the Salem Evangelical and Reformed church, president; Winston Bell of the Central Christian church, vice president; Miss June Ammerstein of the First Reformed church, secretary-treasurer; Harold Parrish of the Central Christian church, county superintendent. Dr. Harry L. Bell, pastor of the Central church, was chosen advisor.

"The nobleness of a nation inheres in the worthy labor of its people. 'Labor Day' is a 'day that the Lord hath made. Let us rejoice and be glad in it.'" Dr. Waring urged the congregation.

Dr. Waring spoke in part as follows:

"Necessity is an urge to human endeavor that is ordained of God. He sent Jesus to the world with the stress of it upon him. How often the Master is recorded as saying, 'I must!' He was under tremendous compulsion to redeem a world that was lost.

"Necessity is also one of the great incentives put upon sinners to drive them to a better life. Jesus said, 'Ye must be born again.'

"The proverb has it that 'Necessity is the mother of invention.' But it is more than that. It is the mother of daring. We rarely plunge into the heroic until we have to.

"And necessity is also the mother of diligence. We might be a generation of loafers were it not for the necessity to work.

"Wherever necessity is lacking, life is likely to fall short of expressing its powers to the uttermost. A critic speaking of an artist whose health made it unnecessary for him to be diligent said, 'All he needs is poverty to make him great.' Social workers say that the danger of the dole is that it takes from man the economic necessity for work, and he degenerates toward utter dependence upon society for his living.

"So, let us, like St. Paul, take pleasure in necessities. Vacation time is over. We come from our summer playtime. The hard work is waiting. Teachers must get back into the school room. The kiddies must gather up their books. The college lads and lassies must get back to the institutions where they are to prepare for life. The housewives must face the fall work and the care of the family. The bread winners must get back on the job for the good old pay check. Don't grumble. Thank the Lord that work is necessary. Work makes people happy."

Rev. Ahrens Presides

Rev. H. C. Ahrens, pastor of Salem church, presided for the service and pronounced the benediction. Rev. Lawrence A. Wood of Trinity Baptist church offered prayer and Dr. Bell read the scripture lesson.

"It was a good farewell. We are very pleased with the summers' services," one of the ministers said today.

WHAT TO DO FOR ECZEMA ITCHING AND BURNING

Wash the affected parts with Resinol Soap and warm water to soften scales and crusts. Resinol Soap is suggested because it contains no excess of free alkali, and is especially suited to tender skin. Dry by patting with a soft cloth—do not rub.

Doctors recommend an oily ointment because it penetrates the outer layers of the skin more effectively. Resinol Ointment meets this requirement, and does even more. For over 40 years it has been—and still is—successfully used to relieve quickly the itching and burning of eczema. It contains soothing ingredients that aid healing. At druggists.

Marion Team Winner in Last Four Games Of Season

LA CROSSE, NICHOLS WIN LABOR DAY MAT TILTS

Gil LaCrosse, that battling gob of Boston, again demonstrated to Marion wrestling fans last night that he likes the rough stuff best and was disqualified at the end of 12 minutes of the second fall of his scheduled 90-minute bout with Indian Frank Kirkland. In the other half of the double bill, held at the Steam Shovel gymnasium, Jackie Nichols won over Silent Rattan with his ever-dangerous chin spins.

LaCrosse had the first fall safely tucked away when he started his dirty work. The fall came in 20 minutes as the result of a hammerlock, followed by a shoulder butt and a body press. Things were progressing nicely, in fact too nicely, when Referee Charley Carr of Little Rock, Ark., stopped the match at the end of 12 minutes and awarded Indian Kirkland the bout.

Silent Rattan met his equal in Jackie Nichols of West Palm Beach, Fla. The Silent one fell heir to a series of chin spins followed by a body press to lose the first fall in 16 minutes.

Nichols fell the wrath of Kansas City in the next fall when Rattan went about winning in a very businesslike manner. A series of shoulder whips climaxed by a flying head scissors laid Nichols among the sweet peas. He was revived in time to finish the match.

Seemingly angered, and none the worse for his little escapade with Rattan, Nichols went on to win the third fall in six minutes, using his favorite chin spin, followed by a body press.

In a 20-minute preliminary, Fritz Krueger, 185, of Germany fought to a draw with Allah Pasha of India. The bout provided little excitement as it progressed slowly, but roughly. Charlie Carr, a wrestler well-known to Marion grapple fans, refereed all the bouts.

GEYGANITES FINISH IN SECOND POSITION; 400 SEE FINAL TILTS

Findlay To Open Playoff Series in Marion Thursday at 5:30.

Marion's Ohio State League baseball team won both ends of a double-header 8-4 and 8-1 over the Fremont Reds yesterday to close the regular playing season for both teams. On Sunday, Marion won 2-2 and 3-1 over the Reds in a twin bill played on the Fremont diamond.

Led by some excellent work on the part of hurlers Spence and Erich, Marion had no trouble in subduing the fifth-place Fremont team in yesterday's games, witnessed by a crowd of 400 persons. Lefty Spence hit safely three times and allowed the Reds seven safe bingles in the opener. Erich had two hits in three trips to the plate and allowed seven hits in the nightcap which was called at the end of six and one-half innings.

Morris turned in an excellent piece of moundwork in the second Sunday game, limiting the Reds to only five safeties. Gordon Mann struck out eight men in the opener to keep himself out of serious trouble.

After scoring three runs in the first inning the Geyganites seemed unable to solve the plants of Spinetti, manager Bohl's hurling choice for the opening game and went scoreless for the remainder of the contest. But three runs were enough to win. The Reds scored a run in the fourth on Winters single to center. Botlock's walk and Hribernik's smashing double. The only bright spot in the inning for Marion fans was provided by Mann, who struck out the next three men to face him.

Scoreless Four Innings

Again in the fifth, Fremont pushed across another run on a pair of singles and a stolen base. Neither team was able to score in the last four innings.

The Geyganites continued to be scoreless wonders in the second game until their record reached 14 innings without a tally, pulling out of the nosedive just in time in the seventh to score three men and give Morris his ninth victory for the season.

Marion's runs came on singles by Kauffman and Geygan to right, followed by a hit to third which Harris beat out to fill the bases. Mulvihill singled, scoring Gauffman and Geygan, Harris going to third. Morris poled a long fly to right, scoring Harris.

In the first game of the Labor Day attraction, Marion scored one run in the first one each in the third, fourth and fifth, and wound up activities by pushing 4 tallies across in the sixth. A single by Stiewe, followed by a safety by Platek put Marion in scoring position in the first. Baker, the next man up, sent a hot grounder to third which was promptly tossed to second to force Platek. Stiewe scoring.

Fremont scored three runs in the third on a single by Bohl, a double by Vavrek, and a base on balls. Baker was hit by the pitcher. Fremont scored its other tally in the eighth on a single by Bullock and a double by Bohl.

Spence and Eader singled in the third to score one run. Harris and Spence hit safely to tally one more in the fourth, and Geygan and Platek cracked out safeties to put Marion in the lead 4-3 in the fifth inning.

The big uprising came in the sixth when Mulvihill, Spence and Stiewe, the first three men to face Baker, hit safely. Eader was out, Hribernik to Pfeifer, but Platek singled off the pitcher's knee scoring Spence and sending Stiewe to third. Mulvihill had scored on

TIGERS' COLOR SCHEME

A.L. Hitting Honors
GEHRINGER
THE GRAY GHOST—SILENTLY EFFICIENT—A COLORLESS SUPER-PLAYER!
GEE WALKER
THE CONTRAST—COLORFUL ECCENTRIC DETROIT IDOL
THIS GOD PAIR—THE GRAY GHOST AND THE SCREWY SLUGGER, ARE THE BIG GUNS OF DETROIT'S ATTACK!
BURLEY

THOSE brave Bengals from Detroit suffered a severe buffeting from the baseball fates this season. Two of their greatest stars, Rowe and Cochrane, were stricken by illness and injuries early in the campaign, and as a result the Tigers never had a chance to give the mighty Yankees much of a tussle.

Still, the maulers from the Motor City have acquitted themselves gallantly and have nothing to be ashamed of, though they are way behind the league leaders.

A heavy-hitting aggregation, the Detroit attack presents a novel "color scheme," as it were. The two big guns of the Tigers' attack, both up among the leading candidates for 1937 hitting honors, are Charley Gehringer and Gerald "Gee" Walker. What a contrast in this pair!

Gehringer, called the Gray Ghost of baseball, is absolutely colorless but mechanically perfect. A silently efficient phantom, wreaking havoc upon the opposition while causing hardly a ripple of public attention—that's the great Gehringer.

On the other mitt we have Gee Walker, dubbed Iron-Head for his eccentricities, a sunburst of color and a smashing hitter. Gee is a popular idol, where the ghostly Gehringer is just a number on the scorecard. Gee isn't nearly the player that Colorless Charles is, but he breaks into the headlines much more often.

CLEVELAND BREAKS EVEN WITH CHISOX

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, Sept. 7 — The Cleveland Indians were idle today and went to Detroit for a three-game series after splitting a double bill with Chicago yesterday in the Cleveland Stadium.

Both games were pitcher's battles and both scores 2 to 1. Chicago won the first game when Ted Lyons outlasted Willis Hudlin. Then youthful Bob Feller allowed but four hits to shade Thornton Lee.

Feller stole the show again before 28,000 fans. He fanned nine batters and allowed only two walks. Three of the White Sox' four hits were bunched in the fourth inning for their only run.

Feller won his own game with a triple to the left field wall in the fifth inning. Lyn Lary scored him with a single.

KENTON PONDERS OUTCOME OF GAME

Special to The Star

KENTON, O., Sept. 7—Officials of the Hardin county softball league today were called upon to determine the outcome of a championship tilt between the league leading Forest All-Stars and Kenton Hardwares.

At conclusion of the fifth inning the Kenton team was leading, 4 to 3. When the first half of the sixth drew to a close, Forest was ahead by a score of 6 to 4. During the interchange, an argument developed and darkness halted the game before the last half of the sixth could be played. If Kenton won, then two tie games must be replayed. If the home team lost then Forest is the county soft ball champion.

TRIBE SPLITS PAIR; FELLER FANS NINE, ALLOWS FOUR HITS

Indians Divide With White Sox; Reds Share With Cubs in Double.

By DREW MIDDLETON

Associated Press Sports Writer

Westward the pain of the pennant takes its way with the game guys from Cooran's Bluff plumb in the middle of the road.

Just about everything possible in baseball happened for 215,000 major league fans who saw yesterday's 18 games. Lefty Lee Grissom of the Reds pitched a one hitter—and lost. Ray Phebus hurled a one-hitter for Washington and won. Joe DiMaggio slapped homer No. 40; Hank Greenberg powdered No. 33.

And when it was all over? The Giants had won two and the Cubs had split. The New Yorkers start an 18-game trip to hostile ballwicks tomorrow with a three game lead.

Supported by the stalwart arms of Cliff Melton and Hal Schumacher, the Giants drubbed the Phillies, 6 to 2 and 9 to 3. Honest John McCarthy hit two home runs; Harry Danning got another. Mel Ott extended his hitting streak to 21 straight games and drew closer to the coveted .300 mark.

The thunderous cheers that greeted the conquerors were matched in Chicago by the moans of the North Siders. The last place Reds came very close to trimming the Cubs twice. They won the opener 7-3 behind Paul Derringer. Grissom checked the Cubs in the nightcap until the eighth when Phil Cavarretta's pop fly double, a sacrifice, a wild pitch and a long fly plus some shoddy infield play handed the Chicagoans two runs and the ball game, 2-1.

The Giants leave home with the standings like this:

| Club | W. | L. | GB. | GTP. |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| Giants | 75 | 48 | — | 39 |
| Cubs | 74 | 52 | 3 | 28 |

The Pirates and Cardinals, the only other clubs even faintly in the race, split. The Cards won one behind Bob Weiland, 4-1, and Arky Vaughan's homer took the second for the Bucs, 5-4. The Dodgers won behind Luke Hamlin 2-1 in ten innings and then bowed before Lou Fette as that admirable and aged rookie won his 17th victory.

Young Mr. Phebus, a 28-year-old right hander from Clovis, Calif., by way of Chattanooga, brought his talent to the attention of the American league by blanking the Red Sox with one hit after the Sox, behind the venerable Lefty Grove, had won the opener, 6-2. Phebus fanned four and walked seven.

The Yankees had little trouble with the Philadelphia Athletics, taking two, 6-3, and 2-1. Signor DiMaggio and Ivy Paul Andrews who pitched a neat three-hit game, figured prominently in the proceedings. The Bronx bombers kept pace with their competitors as the Tigers shook down the Browns, 10-9 and 5-2 with Greenberg and Pete Fox leading the way.

Bob Feller fanned nine, allowed four hits and tripled to give the Indians an even break 2-1 after Ted Lyons had halted the Tribe in the morning game for the White Sox by the same score.

Germany is building a network of super highways which when completed will extend more than 7,000 kilometers and include more than 2,500 new bridges.

NEW YORK, Sept. 7—Tommy Farr is nothing less than a riot on the air. . . You should see the guy's fan mail after last week's debut (pronounced by Tommy de-boot). . . Clover fields are ahead for the gritty Welshman. . . Tennessee and Kentucky have been feuding at football since 1899, but never signed a contract . . Our scouts at Forest Hills report that Bobby Riggs has plenty on the ball . . Baseball gossip has it that Tony Lazzeri of the Yanks is definitely headed to manage the Cleveland Indians and that Lefty O'Doul (you know, the man in the green suit) will leave San Francisco and move into Burleigh Grimes' job in Brooklyn.

What'll you offer now against another subway World series? . . . They say the National Football league is putting the pressure on the New York Giants to trim the eastern All-Stars tomorrow night. . . If the collitchers take the money boys again, pro football prestige will hit the toboggan. No wonder President Joe Carr has a bad case of the jitters out there in Columbus. O-hi-o. . Harry Danning of the Giants had to get permission from his rabbi to play yesterday. Everett Marshall, recognized in some 30 states as heavyweight burping champ, says the mat game needs a dictator like Judge Landis.

Sue us if we're wrong. The starting backfield for the All-Stars tomorrow night will be Leo Rue of Pitt; Dufkie of Fordham, Meyer of Army and Furey of Columbia. After looking at the Farr-Louis fight pictures, several Texas sports editors adjourned to the nearest pub and unanimously voted Louis earned no better than a draw. Clem McCarthy, the demon announcer, will please note . . The recent row between Burleigh Grimes and Umpire Goetz was brought to a head when Grimes remarked he once knew a guy who ate garlic for a purpose. . Now he may have to call on President Ford Frick and explain exactly what he meant and why.

Looks like a free-for-all between Forest Hills, Germantown and Brookline, Mass., for next year's Davis Cup Tilts. . Tops for the Jim Braddock-Max Baer fight will be $15. . Jim and Max will split 60 per cent of the gate. . Eunice Peacock, Temple sprinter, used up 35 pairs of shoes in three years of intercollegiate competition.

GRISSOM PITCHES ONE-HITTER, LOSES

CHICAGO, Sept. 7—The Cincinnati Reds were idle today, turning toward Pittsburgh for a three-game series with the fourth-place Pirates starting tomorrow.

Lefty Lee Grissom was the saddest player in the Redleg camp today as he reflected over his hard luck in yesterday's second game with the Cubs. Grissom allowed only one hit, a fly by Phil Cavaretta in the eighth inning, that beat him 2 to 1. The hit was good for a double as Hub Walker overran the ball.

Paul Derringer was credited with his sixth straight victory as Cincinnati won the opener of a holiday doubleheader, 7 to 3.

COLUMBUS DIVIDES PAIR WITH TOLEDO, STILL IN TOP SPOT

Minneapolis Position in Pennant Race Hurt by St. Paul Victory.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Sept. 7 — The Minneapolis Millers, battling to stay with Columbus in the American Association pennant fight, opened a three-game series with the dangerous Milwaukee Brewers today—and the Millers probably are thankful they're facing the 1936 champions instead of those troublesome St. Paul Saints.

The Saints, who have been fighting to keep out of the association cellar all season, dealt Minneapolis' flag hopes a severe blow yesterday. They whipped the Millers 6 to 2 and 5 to 4 for a sweep of the Labor day series putting a full game on the margin by which Columbus now leads the Doubt Bush crew.

In dropping four games back of the Red Birds, who divided with the third place Toledo Mud Hens, Minneapolis couldn't conveniently solve Bill Cox's nine-hit hurling in the morning opener.

In the afternoon, Manager Pat Todt led the Saints to victory with four hits, including a home run and two doubles.

An overflow crowd of 15,326 persons, largest gathering at Columbus this season, watched Toledo whip the Red Birds 7 to 5 and then bow to the pace-setters, 4 to 2. Fred Johnson went the distance for the Hens in the first tilt. Max Macon, bought recently by St. Louis' Cardinals, turned in a three-hit performance for his 21st win of the year in taking the nightcap.

Kansas City and Milwaukee broke even in their bargain bill, the Brewer taking the opener 7 to 4 and the Blues the nightcap 7 to 2.

In the day portion of a day-night double bill, Louisville downed Indianapolis 7 to 4. The night game was called in the ninth inning with the score tied 4-4 to enable the Indianapolis club to board a train.

RED BIRDS THIRD SACKER TO CARDS

Justin Stein, Columbus Red Bird third baseman, has been sold to the parent St. Louis National League club for an unannounced sum of cash, according to an announcement made yesterday by the Columbus club. Stein, with the Houston Texas League club last season, is rated as one of the outstanding third basemen in the American Association. He'll report to the Cardinals at St. Petersburg, Fla., next spring.

Announcement was also made of the recall of Henry Walton, young infielder, from Albany of the Georgia-Florida League. He reported yesterday and was immediately placed on the Red Birds' active list.

STOCKS PLUNGE AMID WAR TALK

Threatened Rome - Moscow Break and Far East Scrap Brings 1 to 10 Point Fall.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Sept. 7—Touched off by a fresh foreign war scare, stocks crashed through resistance areas in today's market for losses of 1 to 10 points generally. There were a few wider setbacks.

It was the worst break of the year, with numerous issues plunging into low territory for 1937 or longer. The ticker tape lagged three minutes behind at the peak of the decline. Volume dwindled later and there were mild recoveries her and there. Most leaders, though, closed at or near bottom levels.

Threats of a rupture between Italy and Russia over the latter's charges of "piracy" in the Mediterranean by the former's submarines, brokers said, were the principal cause of relapse.

Cloudier developments on the Shanghai battle front, coupled with growing doubts of a substantial pickup in domestic trade this fall, were also seen as depressing factors.

U. S. Steel tumbled through par for the first time since July 2. Other steels were weak, along with motors, coppers, rails, oils, farm implements, rubbers, mail orders and specialties.

Transfers approximated 1,700,000 shares.

Grains reflected war rumblings by running counter to stocks. Wheat at Chicago was up 2½ to 3½ cents a bushel and corn gained 1½ to 4¾. Most other commodities advanced. Bonds followed the share list.

Conspicuous stock losers included Chrysler, Bethlehem Steel, Youngstown Sheet & Tube, Sloss-Sheffield, International Harvester, Republic Steel, National Steel, Wheeling Steel, Vanadium, General Motors, Goodyear, Goodrich, U. S. Rubber, Montgomery Ward, Sears Roebuck, American Telephone, Western Union, Westinghouse, General Electric, American Smelting, New York Central, Pennsylvania, Southern Pacific, Northern and Air Reduction.

Commission houses reported the decline of the past three weeks had "frozen" in many of their customers. In other words, numerous trading commitments have dropped below the 55 per cent margin requirements, thus halting potential buying until more cash is put up or prices rally sufficiently to reinstate margins.

In addition to the European powder keg which, in the event of an explosion, might cause liquidation of American securities from some of the countries concerned, Wall Street was apprehensive of selling by Oriental holders if the Sino-Japanese war is long drawn out. Foreign selling today, however, was reported negligible.

Banking quarters estimated the far east bought around $44,000,000 of American stocks and bonds in 1935 and 1936. Part of these purchases have already been sold, it was believed, although the amount still held is large.

Hitler's Reference to Friendship With Japan Adds to European Tension.

VETS TO HOLD BEAN DINNER

Outing Will Be Held at Fairgrounds Sept. 25 by V. F. W. Post.

Plans were announced today by the Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 8313 of Marion for the first annual hilligan bean dinner and picnic to be held Sept. 25 at the fairgrounds. Although similar events have been staged by posts throughout the country, it will be the first for Marion and vicinity.

The program will last all afternoon and evening and will be featured by the bean dinner which will be cooked in massive kettles, each holding 50 pounds of beans and pork, in the style of the hill country.

Several contests have been tentatively arranged, including a bicycle race. Persons who wish to enter the amateur contest should make application through Otto H. Miller at 689 Silver street or Thomas Finch of South State street.

An old fashioned hilligan barn dance will be held in the fine arts hall at night with music by Otto Miller and the V. F. W. orchestra. Prizes will be given for the most comic couple and other awards will be made for dancing.

The general committee for the day includes: E. L. Bowersock as chairman. The publicity committee is composed of Charles Fuller, chairman, John Monk, Ivan Willis-singer, William Weir; entertainment, Otto Miller, chairman, David Roth, Frank Reite, N. V. # GEYGANITES FINISH IN SECOND POSITION

Stiewe's double, Baker walked, filling the bases. Kauffman beat out an infield hit, scoring Platek and Stiewe. Manager Chapple Geygan was hit by a pitched ball, again filling the bases. Harris ended the fireworks by hitting into a double play Bohl to Hribernik to Pfeifer.

Marion Scores

Taking advantage of Pitcher Proia's wildness in the nightcap the men of Geygan filled the bases on straight walks to Stiewe, Eader and Platek in the first inning.

QUICK THINKER WINS AIR RACE

Rudy Kling of Illinois Snatches Thompson Trophy as Foes Meet Bad Luck.

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, Sept. 7—A garage man who learned flying the hard way—by starting as a "grease monkey" and working up—held the most prized title in American closed course racing today because he thought fast when a couple of other fellows ran into tough luck.

In the Thompson trophy speed classic, Rudy Kling of Lemont, Ill., dived to a plane-length Labor day victory at a burning pace when first one and then another of the leaders wavered.

It was a camera finish for the $24,000 event, closing feature of the national air races. Approximately 200,000 persons saw it, 150,000 in the grandstands and the rest on the surrounding countryside.

Earl Ortman Second

Earl Ortman of Los Angeles, who was second, remarked with obvious chagrin as he landed, "I wish I'd known I could have had it. I had the reserve speed."

But only Kling, streaking along a thousand feet in the air, high above his field, knew that Steve Wittman of Oshkosh, Wis., was fighting an ailing motor and that Col. Roscoe Turner, Chicago hard luck artist, had faltered with the sun in his eyes to round a pylon on the quadrangular course a second time.

Wittman had led the pack for 18 of the 20 ten-mile laps, boosting his mount along at a pace of better than 260 miles an hour. Turner had overtaken the tenacious Ortman for second place. Suddenly the leader, oil stinging his face, slowed his pace.

Turner Takes Lead

Turner whipped into the lead. For a lap and a quarter he gunned his little racer toward what seemed to be certain victory. Then, blinded by the setting sun, he banked sharply to round pylon No. 2 on the back stretch again, afraid he had cut it.

Kling saw it all. With a terrific burst of speed, enhanced by a dive in the final few hundred yards of the race, he shot across the finish line the winner at an average pace of 256.91 miles an hour.

Turner lagged behind Ortman for the third place. Frank Sinclair, Farmingdale, N. Y., was fourth and Wittman, determined to place in the money, fifth.

It was guts to Turner. Fire in his racer had shut him out of the Bendix transcontinental derby, opening event of the four-day air show, last Friday. Cutting a pylon in 1933 cost him money. Yesterday's bad luck—he collected only $3,000 instead of the winner's $9,000—was climactic.

Finday Man Out

To complete Turner's package of disappointments, Lieut. Joseph Mackey of Findlay, O., flying the Chicagoan's old "57," had to drop out of the Thompson at the three-quarter pole.

A fresh record in the Bendix event was established after five years. Frank Fuller, San Francisco sportsman, sped from Burbank, Calif. to Cleveland at a speed of 258 miles per hour, to upset Jimmy Haizlip's 1932 mark of 245. He also set a new Bendix transcontinental record of nine hours 25 minutes.

The highest speed established in the four-day meet was that of Wittmen, 274.672 miles per hour, in a Thompson qualifying sprint on Sunday.

Women fliers who have enough to tired unrelenting resistance from the men when they have tried to enter major money competition, seemed to take little interest in this year's events. Jacqueline Cochran of California and Jean Yorke, the only woman entered in the free-for-all Bendix, placed third.

The quota of accidents was relatively meager, the major one being Lee Miles' death last Thursday night when a wing folded up on a test flight.

LOYALISTS ADVANCE ON ARAGON FRONT

Seek To Cut Rebel Communications Between Zaragoza and Teruel.

By The Associated Press

HENDAYE, Franco - Spanish Frontier, Sept. 7—One column of the Spanish government army which captured Belchite in fierce fighting on the Aragon front was reported today to have advanced 12 miles beyond the devastated town.

This column was trying to cut communications between the insurgent stronghold of Zaragoza in northeast Spain and its southernmost outpost at Teruel.

Other government troops proceeded to consolidate gains around the town lying 22 miles south of Zaragoza.

Belchite was in ruins from 32 consecutive bombardments before its insurgent defenders lost it. The government said 80 wounded insurgents found in the town's hospital were given the same treatment as wounded government soldiers, and were evacuated to the rear.

MARION CO. WINS UNION COUNTY SUIT

A permanent injunction to restrain Jesse S. Kagay of Richwood and others from halting the Marion Sand & Gravel Co. in use of a half-acre tract of land at its Richwood plant was granted last week in Union county common pleas court at Marysville. The suit was brought by the receiver for the company, Carter M. Patton of Marion, more than a year ago to test the title to the property.

The half-acre tract was not included in the original deed when the company purchased its Richwood pit several years ago according to the receiver. Mr. Kagay had attempted to halt the company from using the tract over which the company's tracks and other construction extended.

The Richwood pit is in full operation now under receivership. Others named as defendants in the suit were Sturgis S. Cheney and Adele M. Kagay. Fred E. Guthery was attorney for the receiver.

CARDINGTON, O., Sept. 7—A woman and two children were injured Saturday night when their car skidded in heavy traffic on a curve at a bridge near here and crashed into another automobile coming from the opposite direction.

Those injured are Mrs. Pearl Branham, 40, Catherine Mickey, 12, and Lois Mickey, 10, all colored and all of Cleveland. J. D. Branham, husband of the injured woman, who was driving the car was uninjured. His son, John, 12, riding with him in the front seat, was also uninjured.

BOOTH ROOMMATE OF MARION STUDENT

R. E. Cheney Close Friend of Grid Star Killed in Accident

A Marion student at Ohio State university was a roommate of Bill Booth, 22, Ohio State university football star for whom funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. Wednesday at East Liverpool.

Booth's roommate from Marion was Richard E. Cheney of 217 St. James street. He and Booth shared a room for two quarters last term in the Phi Delta Theta fraternity house. Mr. Cheney, recovering from an appendicitis operation at City hospital, will be unable to attend the funeral.

Booth, whose gridiron prowess at the university was expected to reach its peak this season, was fatally injured Saturday night when the automobile he was driving collided with a truck 10 miles south of East Liverpool.

Booth would have been a junior this year. He was regarded as one of Ohio State's most promising players last year. He was a defensive and offensive star at halfback and an excellent place kicker. Slippery pavement was blamed for three automobile accidents Saturday afternoon, two miles South of Norton. # JAPANESE FORTIFY IN CHURCH PROPERTY dent Roosevelt's warning that United States citizens remain in China at their own risk.

The note, addressed to Secretary of State Cordell Hull, expressed "resentment" of American missionaries and business men and urged greater protection of them and their interests.

It was disclosed, meanwhile, that the United States transport Chaumont will assist in further evacuation of American civilian and naval families from the Shanghai war area. The Chumont is due here Sept. 26 with 1,200 marine reinforcements.

The Chaumont is being removed by the United States light cruiser Marblehead. Although later disposition of the Marblehead was not announced, it was believed she would remain in Shanghai as part of the American protective fleet.

Refugees to Be Removed

The United States submarine tender Canopus will remove American refugees from Tsingtao Sept. 23 and the destroyer tender Black Hawk will evacuate naval families from Chefoo Sept. 30.

On the north new outbursts of firing on the western edge of Tientsin, indicating that regular Chinese troops or Chinese irregulars still are active in the Japanese-dominated area, apparently balked a Japanese offensive against Machang, strategic Chinese stronghold 30 miles south of Tientsin.

On the south, Sir Frederick Maze British inspector general of Chinese customs confirmed the deliberate bombing by Japanese planes of two British-commanded customs boats off the city of Ningpo, in Chekiang province, 60 miles from Shanghai.

Sir Frederick said both vessels were riddled by shrapnel and that their crews were machine-gunned. Not only were the lives of two British commanders imperilled, he charged, but also six seamen were wounded and one was drowned.

The Japanese attack in force began after Chinese suddenly shifted from the defensive to a furious offensive against the Japanese lines.

Japanese army spokesmen admitted their advance was meeting determined pressure on all fronts with the Chinese strongly entrenched in semi-permanent concrete pill-boxes and dugouts.

with the governor's brother, Sen. Robert M. La Follette as its candidate for president.

John L. Lewis, militant leader of the CIO, largely molded politics in speeches at Pittsburgh and Leechburg, Pa., but he told a cheering throng that for the welfare of the country as a whole labor must become strong enough to take its proper place at the council tables of industry and of the nation."

Lewis nailed the past year a one of great achievement by labor and his CIO. His group claims a membership of 3,718,000 and the American Federation of Labor one of 3,600,000.

While Lewis steered clear of politics, he had had his say on this subject earlier in a Friday night address excoriating those "so-called political friends" of labor "who lose no chance to drive their knives into labor's defenseless back."

At that time he criticized the President as a fair-weather friend of labor, marking a new break with the man for whose 1936 presidential campaign Lewis' United Mine workers contributed $500,000.

Lewis was boomed for president by Judge M. A. Musmanno of Allegheney county (Pittsburgh) at the Pittsburgh mass meeting.

"We shall all work to change the title of our honored guest to John L. Lewis, president of the United States," said Judge Musmanno.

But while CIO and other speakers predicted greater assertion of labor's political power, William Green, A. F. L. president, affirmed at Dallas, Tex., the federation's long standing non-partisan policy. He recognized talk of a new labor party, but, said:

"Nothing has occurred thus far which would cause the American Federation of Labor to change its policy."

Green asserted nations) application of the sit-down strike, used in some CIO industrial disputes, would "pave the way" to a "Fascist dictatorship."

REASURY ENDS TS BORROWING

...rgenthau Says He Has ...ough Cash; Interest Rate on Notes Cut.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7—Secre... Morgenthau curtailed a treas... borrowing program yesterday, ...ing that "we have enough ... on hand and there is no ... for further borrowing."

He told reporters holders of ...0 of 3½ per cent federal ... maturing Sept. 15 would be ... a choice of two exchange issues—1½ per cent 15-months notes or 2 per cent five-year notes.

Bills Discontinued

Discussing the treasury's weekly sales of $50,000,000 in discount bills, the secretary said he had decided to discontinue these issues.

Sold in anticipation of fourth-quarter tax receipts Dec. 15, recent issues have aggregated $450,000,000. The treasury originally had announced the series would total $500,000,000.

"We won't need as much money as we thought," Morgenthau said. "With the balances on hand, we feel perfectly comfortable."

The treasury chief reported expenditures for "recovery and relief" thus far this fiscal year dropped about one-third under last year. Exclusive of a drop in repayments to lending agencies, he said federal finances have improved over last year.

Asked why the deficit this year had increased over that a year ago, Morgenthau referred the question to Daniel W. Bell, acting budget director, who said:

"I don't think that is anything to worry about. It has been due to special factors in the first two months of this year."

Excluding lending agencies, Morgenthau said, "expenditures this year are running approximately as estimated."

Marriage Meddlers

BY ADELE GARRISON

Olga Knows Veritzen Once Loved Madge and Lil, Too.

WHAT WOULD Queen Olga say next? I did not dare to look at Lillian as I asked myself the question, but I had the eerie feeling that she was putting the same mental query to herself.

There had been something mischievously significant in the colorlary of the story of her former romance with Philip Veritzen which the deposed queen of Transvania had just related to us. I caught at fragments of the phrases.

"I know the years have not been empty of romance for Phil...Given me his confidence most surprisingly..."

Was it possible that Philip Veritzen had dared—? The answer to my query came suddenly.

"He told me that he had been madly in love with both of you—at different periods of his life, of course—but that neither of you returned his affection."

How Lillian managed a light laugh, with just the right soupcon of scornful amusement investing it, I do not know. I was capable of nothing in that instant save a hot flame of indignation that swept me from head to foot. If Philip Veritzen's still handsome face had been within reach, I am afraid his patrician good looks might have been somewhat damaged.

"A dear old Irish friend of mine has a proverb that just fits that," Lillian said. "It run like this: 'He says a lot beside his prayers, that one.'"

Name Any Others?

She laughed again, and leaned confidentially toward the invalid.

"Did he name any other subjects of his love interest?" she asked with a tinge of mockery investing her tones.

A curious glint which puzzled me had come into Queen Olga's eyes, which went from Lillian's face to mine, as if weighing what she found there.

"No, he did not," she replied, "In fact, the inference was plain that you two were his only romances since the death of his wife."

"I wish I had his imagination, don't you, Madge?" Lillian queried. "It would be invaluable to you in your work as a playwright."

From somewhere I brought up a perfunctory comment.

"Dicky would say that he was working his imagination overtime," I said, and relapsed into silence.

"I don't quite understand you," Olga said. "Do you mean—"

Admired Many

"I mean simply this, my dear," Lillian said. "Philip Veritzen is what we call 'an incurable romanticist.' He mourned his wife's death sincerely, but, save for a period of perhaps two years following her death, there hasn't been any year which has not seen Phil romantically admiring some woman, almost always one who has been associated with him professionally. Propinquity is Phil's greatest peril," Lillian went on with a grin. "It was that which was responsible for his brief interest in me. Madge's association with him is his organization was the reason for his interest in her. Oh, yes, there were moments when he deluded himself into thinking that each of us would be sort of cute as a guiding star, but it didn't take long for him to get over the notion."

She smiled engagingly at Olga, and I was lost in admiration of the easy, amused, faintly scornful attitude which she was assuming toward the bombshell Philip Veritzen's first love had tossed to us.

"Most of Phil's romances were so ephemeral that they dissolved into thin air," Lillian went on swiftly. "I do not believe he remembers their names, or would recognize them if he met them face to face. Madge and I always have been proud that beneath his rather ridiculous romantic admiration of us there was a recognition of comradeship which enabled each of us to form a friendship with him utterly devoid of any touch of sentiment."

LILLIAN had turned the trick! I told myself this jubilantly as I furtively watched Queen Olga's face during Mrs. Underwood's ingenious explanation countering Olga's statement of what Philip Veritzen had told us of his "romances" with us.

She had drawn a portrait of Philip Veritzen as an "incurable romanticist," with many temporary infatuations since his wife's death, all of them ephemeral. Subtly, without words, she had conveyed her belief that Queen Olga herself, his first love, was the one woman whom he never had forgotten through the years.

And she had done much more than that. She had laid once for all any bogey that might have occupied Queen Olga's mind concerning Phillip Veritzen's confidence to her that he had been "madly in love" with both of us at different times, but that neither of us had returned his affection.

Attractive Picture

The smile which had been the least of courtiers wreathed Queen Olga's lips, and her lustrous eyes held glints of mirth.

"You have painted a most attractive picture of our mutual friend," she said. "It gives me hope that when he finds out that I have recognized him, he and I also may form an enduring friendship founded on that long past romance."

I permitted myself an amused doubt that her wish was genuine, although I was sure she was persuading herself it was. But her next words gave us a glimpse of feminine phychology which confirmed the theory that women's hearts are the same whether they belong to peasant or princess.

"I do not know when I shall tell him that I know who he really is," she went on. "You see," she added surprisingly, "to his youthful picture of me, he added another when, upon my trip over here, I was feted so often. Almost always he was one of the guests. He saw me always at my best, and although I was older, so was he. And, I think, although he was no longer in love with me, a little of the old glamor had lingered with him."

More Than Little

More, much more than a little, I said to myself, and guessed that Lillian was making the same mental comment. But, of course, we spoke no word aloud, and the low voice went on.

"But that night on the yacht, when I looked like a soiled, dishevelled peasant, ended all illusion for Philip Veritzen. He has carefully and chivalrously concealed it, and no homage in my life has ever equalled what he has lavished upon me during my convalescence.

"But I know what his reactions must be since that night on the yacht, and as I have no shred of vanity left, I have simply yielded to the comfort of looking my worst during my convalescence. Indeed, I think I have taken a perverse pleasure in looking ugly.

"Of course," she smiled charmingly, "I could not carry my pose far enough to look my worst when two women who had attracted Phil were to be my audience, so I tried to look my best for you."

"Your best is exceedingly good, my dear Olga," Lillian said dryly. "I don't think you need to fear any competition from any quarter."

"Thank you," she said with a little moue, and then her face suddenly sobered.

"Of course, he will have to know as soon as I am able to leave here," she said. "I have been too—ill—and broken to discuss the problem of my existence, which will be a grave problem, I fear. But you will agree with me on this point, I know; I cannot go on accepting his bounty, once he knows that I have recognized him.

"As long as the pretense is kept up, that he is aiding a deposed queen as part of his well-known propensity for public philanthropy, I can let things go. But the instant he knows that I know him, I must stop accepting things from him and must arrange repayment."

COST OF LIVING HITS NEW HIGH

Government and Business Blame Each Other and Labor Also Chimes In.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7—The high cost of living, a problem which faded out of the picture in depression times, is returning to plague government and public.

Government officials blame business; business criticizes government policy, points to the tax burden and to higher costs, including wage increases.

Labor chimes in with an argument that wages are not increasing fast enough to keep pace with prices.

Buyers' Strike Asked

The latest official to be heard from is D. E. Montgomery, AAA consumers' counsel, who suggested today consumers might perform a "real public service" by conducting a buyers' strike to "end this alarming steady increase in prices."

The American Federation of Labor declared:

"Rising costs of living make wage increases urgent. Any worker whose pay envelope this fall does not bring him 5 per cent more than last fall will be forced to a lower living standard. Living costs in July were already 4.3 per cent above 1936.

"Before the end of the year, prices are expected to increase further in meats, eggs, woolen clothing, furniture, floor coverings and rents. It is conservative to estimate that before winter it will take 5 per cent more to buy last year's living standard."

Montgomery declared one "frightening thing" about the present picture is the "reported tremendous volume of installment buying."

He estimated that installment credits outstanding have increased from $6,000,000,000 in 1929 to $9,000,000,000 at present.

This recalled that the big Commercial Credit Co. of New York recently dispatched a letter to various finance concerns and banks throughout the country suggesting that they participate in "the general movement now going on to put installment financing on a more liquid and sounder basis than it has been during the last year or two."

"The continued extension of long terms on retail installment contracts," said A. E. Duncan, company chairman, "will unduly, and may even unsoundly, expand the indebtedness of purchasers."

A semi-governmental organization will be formed in China that will attempt to unify all provincial tax control systems.

In Ohio History

(From the J. H. Galbraith collection of Ohio histories, written for The Associated Press.)

FIRST PRISONER

The first prisoner received at the old penitentiary on West Mound street in Columbus, O., was John Evans who with his brother David was sent from Pickaway county for "assault and battery to kill," a count that is not provided in the law today. It grew out of a row at a country dance. Both prisoners were pardoned two years later by Gov. Worthington.

In the first five years 150 prisoners were received at this prison and of these 82 were pardoned and 13 died. Manual labor was needed on the canals in the days of this prison and notes on pardon records show that it was common for a prisoner to be given his liberty on condition that he take employment on the canals.

MARION MAN'S TRUCK FIGURES IN CRASH

A load of soy bean meal was strewn over U. S. route 37 near Berkshire, east of Delaware, when a truck driven by R. D. Graff of Marion and a truck loaded with logs collided about 5 a. m. Saturday, according to a news report from Delaware.

According to officials of the Delaware county sheriff's office, the trucks sideswiped. The log truck was driven by Raymond Wilson of Coshocton. No one was injured.

Women Taught Housekeeping in WPA School

If you see a score of women busily cleaning, washing and ironing and cooking at 141 North Prospect street every day, don't be surprised for it is Marion's new WPA training center for maids and other household employes. The women, ranging in ages from 18 to 40, are being instructed in all the duties of keeping house and are now about half way through their eight-week course.

They wash, dust, cook and receive training in the use of modern household appliances such as electric washers, sweepers, toasters and irons. An effort is being made to obtain an electric mangle, stove and mixer for the school.

According to officials of the Columbus office of the WPA, the school was inaugurated early in August as a result of a reported lack of household employes in Marion. Mrs. G. E. Hendricks of Columbus, district director of women's service and professional projects, is in charge of this and similar schools.

The cooking being taught takes into consideration the family budget as well as the family health and efforts are made to show how to serve attractively. Few of the women have had experience in cooking or general housekeeping except in their own homes. They prepare their own lunches as a part of the training.

The students report to work at 8:30 a. m., and stay until 2:30 p. m., daily except Saturdays and Sundays. Their school is in a furnished residence at 141 North Prospect street owned by Mrs. Belle C. Ballinger. The course is expected to be completed early in October.

IT'S ODD But It's Science

BY HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK—There are reasons for believing there is life on the moon, says William H. Pickering, one of the best known astronomers.

He finds these in color changes in some of the moon's craters, the mountains which exactly resemble the earth's volcanic and meteoric craters. He says he believes he has seen tinges of red and green indicating vegetation. The growth can be either hardy plants or bacteria.

The color changes wax and wane with the coming of the moon's daytime, which lasts half a month. The known fact that the moon has no air has been accepted as making any form of life there impossible. The moon hasn't enough gravitational pull to hold an atmosphere, but there might be a few traces of gases close to its surface.

What To Do-

If the Bridegroom Fails To Show Up.

1. Wait for at least an hour.
2. Have a member of the party other than the bride to get in touch with the bridegroom.
3. If he can't be located announce that the wedding has been delayed and will be held later at the convenience of the family.

By The Associated Press

This is the advice of Rev. Dr. Randolph Ray, rector of New York's "Little Church Around the Corner."

It is wise to wait, he argues, for something may have happened. The bridegroom may have forgotten the license—or may not remember that the wedding is scheduled to be held on daylight saving time.

A further caution in connection with weddings:

Do not start looking for the bride if she isn't there on the dot. She never fails to show up, Dr. Ray declares.

And do not send out an alarm for the bride's mother—she is almost invariably the last person to arrive. One mother held up a ceremony for three hours—because she refused to leave home without her new hat.

Tomorrow: If Someone Drinks Poison.

BY HULBERT FOOTNER

SYNOPSIS: Wealthy, flashy Fanning abducts Janet Neill, Baltimore society girl, on his yacht she goes aboard to Neill, a young federal agent who loves her. Rushing to Absalom's Harbor, he searches the yacht and finds, in a locked cabin, Fanning shot dead and Janet in a faint, a gun beside her. Neill hides her nearby in the deserted dunes. Back at the village he watches developments and visits queer little Harold Eyster who hated Fanning. Neill offers to help Mark Bonniger, local investigator. They confer with Lawyer Kettering of Baltimore, who came to fish.

CHAPTER NINETEEN

Back to Janet

WITH the object of drawing a herring across the trail, [illegible] is that the girl's friend was Absalom's man. The story had already gone around the village that there was a girl locked on board the yacht."

"I have been told that," said Bonniger.

"The story was not generally believed. I suppose there was one man who went out to see for himself."

"Absalom's man is missing," Bonniger pointed out.

"He furnished her with the skiff. She then put him ashore and stood away in it alone."

"Impossible!" said Bonniger. "The two sailors, the steward, the engineer all tell me that she was a young and elegant girl, not at all the type who could have saved herself by rowing away in a heavy sea. You can depend upon it, her man went with her. Everything points to the fact that it was someone she knew and trusted. He must have followed the yacht down here."

Neill set his jaw. If Bonniger had deduced so much already, he and Janet were likely to receive an early visit next day.

"She was a cool customer," Bonniger went on. "According to the cook she took a rug out of the after cabin to keep the girl warm, a flashlight out of the saloon and all the canned food there was in the refrigerator."

"Who couldn't he have shot Fanning?" suggested Neill.

Bonniger looked at him with grim humor. "I'm surprised at you," he said, "from a man of your experience. Everything shows that Fanning was shot unawares. If anybody had burst in the door and attacked him the cabin would have presented a very different picture."

Neill was silenced.

"We will know him when we see him," said Bonniger grimly. "Anyhow we got an elegant set of fingerprints on the refrigerator door. We photographed them this afternoon. He's developing it now."

Neill resisted the impulse to thrust his hands in his pockets. His fingers tingled unpleasantly.

Packing the Purchases

When Bonniger had returned to the telephone in Virgil Longcope's office and Kettering to his camp, Neill locked himself in his room upstairs and started distribute the various articles he had bought for Janet about his person. He had not purchased everything in one place but had picked it up at odd times during the day in the different stores about the village.

Women's clothes were out of the question, so he had got her overalls, a shirt, a pair of sneakers. These he had to buy in sizes suitable for himself, and he grinned thinking how Janet would look in them. In addition he had biscuits, cakes of chocolate, a couple of cans of meat, a bottle of soda water, a towel and soap, candles and batteries for the precious flashlight.

When all this was stowed, he appeared to have increased suddenly in weight. However, he had satisfied himself that the back part of the hotel was deserted. He went down the back stairs and out by the kitchen door.

Once he was in the road, he felt safe from observation for the street lights were feeble and far between. The crowd was still hanging about Longcope's store and after he had turned the corner by the river, he met nobody. Aware that all his movements up to now had been watched, he walked with his head over his shoulder.

When he came to the last houses he watched his chance, and scrambled over the fence into the cornfield between road and river. The motorcycle police had been ordered to patrol the state road all night. There was but this one road leading to and from the village on the point, thus it was an easy matter for the police to stop all who might try to leave by car. Neill lay out in the cornfield until he was sure no one followed him over the fence.

He stumbled on over the ploughed field, climbed a couple of fences and found himself in the old road which served the landing used by the big ships. Coming out on the shore, he saw them lying dark and threatening out in the stream. The captain's lights were out tonight. Since his car was not there, Neill judged that he had been drawn to the village by the general excitement.

Neill walked up the beach to the cove below the old farm house. The skiff was tied to it and the oars were in her. He cast off and, making a detour, came back to the Abraham Lincoln from the middle of the water. Feeling his way along the hull, his hand met the twine ladder from above and he grasped it. A moment later the end of the rope ladder fell on his head and he sprang to his feet with a cry. Janet was all right. In a minute she would be with her!

Janet Does Overalls

The thin rope lay flat against the ship's side, and he saw that it was not going to be too easy to climb up. He took off his boots so that his toes could grip the rope, and went up slowly. She was waiting for him at the window. When she grasped it, she flung her arms around his neck in a passion of relief and gladness, and for a little time neither of them could speak. Both felt as if oceans had parted them.

"Oh, Neil! The day was so long!"

"How good it was to hold her close against him! Honey! Honey! Honey! It was hard to be away from you!"

Having lighted a candle, Neill held her away from him so that he could look at her. To find her in these strange surroundings was like seeing her for the first time. In the empty ship her fragile beauty had an unreal quality like a dream. He drew her to him with a sudden fear of losing her.

"If we could only stay aboard

How good it was to hold her close!

here by our two selves and let the rest of the world go to hell!"

When they came back to earth, Janet began to pat him. "What did you bring me? You're covered all over with funny-shaped bumps."

He began to disgorge. She laughed at the curious array of stuff he had brought.

"I wanted those clothes badly. Everything aboard the ship is so dusty my dress is already a sight!"

She carried the clothes into the adjoining room and presently returned looking like a country boy in her rolled-up, hand-me-down overalls. She struck an attitude, sticking her thumbs through the galluses and pursing up her lips to whistle. She looked more real now. He was obliged to seize her in his arms again.

"By God, you look good to me that way-"

"You're smothering me!"

He unwillingly released her.

CHAPTER TWENTY

The Packet of $5 Bills

"HAVE you had your supper?" Neill asked.

"No. I was waiting for you," Janet said.

"I'm not going to touch any of this food. Every crumb's for you."

"I'm not hungry now."

"Sit down and I'll feed you."

And feed her he did, mouthful by mouthful like a bird.

When she protested that she could swallow no more, Neill said she needed exercise. Taking the flashlight, they started for a prowl around the ship. The silence of the long passages laid a kind of spell on them. Janet's hand stole inside Neill's and they spoke in whispers.

On B deck above, they passed through a series of immense public rooms—palm garden, lounge and smoking room—all lavishly gilded and decorated with paintings. The movable furniture had been taken away, but the carpets were still on the floors and the built-in settees around the wall. The flashlight wherever it was turned, revealed circles of dusty magnificence. And so empty!

"Imagine this scene with the lights turned on, the orchestra playing and the passengers dancing," murmured Janet.

"Sure," said Neill, "and imagine it in a storm with the ship rolling like a barrel and the passengers seasick."

She laughed. It was good to him to hear her laugh.

The most attractive room was the restaurant up on the boat deck.

"This is where the champagne corks popped," said Neill.

They went down flight after flight of stairs to E deck, because Neill wanted another piece of rope and a bucket out of the galley. Back again in the royal suite, he showed her how to lower the bucket out of the window when she wanted water for washing.

Afterwards they sat pressed close together on the sofa, smoking comfortably while Neill gave her an account of the happenings of the day. He left out what he thought would distress her too much.

"Well, what are we going to do?" Janet asked.

"You had better stay here a couple of days longer if you can stick it out."

"The worst is over now. I can stand it."

"By then the first crazy excitement ought to have died down."

"And then what?"

And then what? In silent misself. However, he wasn't going to let her see that he was at a loss. "I'll arrange to have a car waiting for us across the river," he said confidently. "They are watching this side too close."

"How will you get a car?"

"I'll go up to town. I know a man who will help us."

Plenty of Money

As they talked things over, Neill as obliged to confess that his money was running short.

"Oh there's plenty of money, luckily," said Janet.

Neill stared at her. "What?"

She got up and, crossing to the desk pulled out a drawer. She brought him a packet of new $5 bills, fastened with a paper strap and a pin, and with the stamp of the bank on the strap. Neill could scarcely believe his eyes. It was the same packet that he had seen Fanning put in his wallet two nights before, and he would as lief have seen a venomous snake in Janet's hands. The sight of that money reminded Neill that Janet had not told a credible story of what had happened aboard the yacht, and because he loved her so much it hurt him as if his flesh had been torn.

"Where did you get that?" he demanded.

"I found it in the pocket of my wrap," she said, astonished at his tone.

"Who put it there?"

"I don't know."

"It's Fanning's money!"

"Well I suppose it must be. But if it's a case of life and death with us."

Anger swept through Neill like a gasoline fire. Snatching the money from her, he strode across the room and sent it flying through the outer window into the river. "I'd sooner starve than touch a dollar of it!"

Janet stared at him silently.

"You are lying to me!" he said. "I reckon you have been lying from the beginning!"

She was no tame woman. She sprang up. "I'm not lying! And I'm not going to take that!"

"I don't care whether you smoked Fanning or not," he said. "I hope you did. It was coming to him. What makes me sore is that you don't trust me. After I have risked everything for you, you are still lying to me!"

"I'm not going to talk to you," she said, starting for the bedroom.

He seized her wrist. "Oh yes, you are! We're going to have this out here and now! I'm willing to believe that you shot him without knowing what you were doing, and that you can't remember anything about it now. That's natural. But you couldn't take his money and put it in your pocket without knowing what you were doing."

"I didn't take his money!"

"Listen. I broke in that door and found you two alone in the cabin. The key was still on the inside of the door, and the portholes were closed and fastened on the inside. If you didn't take Fanning's money, who did?"

"Perhaps there was somebody else aboard the yacht. Somebody of whom we know nothing."

"Somebody else!" said Neill, staring. He dropped her wrist.

"Fanning had told me more than once that he had enemies. That night when we were having dinner on the yacht I thought I saw somebody skulking on the dock. Perhaps he slipped on board when no one below. Perhaps he was hidden in my cabin."

Neill looked. And hid himself in my cabin!"

"There was a clothes closet in there. I tried the door when I first went in and it was locked. Perhaps he had locked himself in there!"

Neill laughed harshly. "For God's sake don't tell that story to anybody but me! That's exactly the kind of story that every hard-pressed defendant tells when he has no defense!"

Janet looked at him strangely, and went quickly into the bedroom. He let her go, and dropped on the sofa pressing his head between his hands. Anger sickened him so that he could not think.

Chase in the Dark

When she did not return, when he heard no sound from the next room, a sudden fear struck through him and he ran in to look for her. The room was empty, the door unbolted and standing open on the corridor. His anger vanished then. Snatching up the flashlight, he ran through the corridor softly calling her name.

"Jen! Jen! Wait!"

He assumed that there was only one way she knew: down to E deck across the dining saloon and the galley and into the engine room shaft. It was the way they had first come. Surely he could overtake her before she had gone far. She had to grope her way in the dark. He ran on occasionally pausing to listen. He could hear nothing. He plunged down the two flights.

When he reached the galley, he realized that he must have passed her. She had hidden behind some corner to let him pass. He turned back. Suppose his anger had rendered her completely desperate? Suppose she returned to the suite and threw herself out of the window? He ran on sick with fear.

However, there was no sound ahead of him. She had not come back to this part of the vessel. He ran into the suite and, without waiting to pull up the rope ladder, closed the window upon it, and also the other windows of the veranda. They were very stiff and he knew she could not open them.

He started down the stairs again. On D deck he heard some mouse like sounds in one of the corridors and searched it cabin by cabin. She was not there. Of course while he was looking on one side, she could run through a cross passage and return on the other. It was like searching a rabbit warren.

He went down to E deck again. While he was in the galley he heard the clang of an iron door ahead of him and plunged in the direction of the sound. She had entered the engine room shaft. She was going on deck.

When he got into the shaft he heard her far above him racing up the iron stairs. "Jen! Jen!" he called. "Wait!" He leaped up the stairs, straining every nerve to overtake her before she could get out on deck. Before he reached the top she was through the door and running forward on the boat deck. He caught her by the forward bridge, and none too soon, because across the decks of the other ships he could see the watchman's lantern coming towards them.

She struggled desperately in his arms. "Let me go! Let me go!"

"Quiet, Jen, for God's sake!" he implored her. "The watchman is coming this way."

"All right, let him come! I want him to come! I'm going to give myself up!"

"No! No! Think what you're doing!"

"I will give myself up, I'm not going to let you risk yourself if you don't believe in me!"

"I do believe in you! I swear it!"

"It's too late to say that now!"

An unseen brute attacks Neill enroute to the village, tomorrow.

RED REVELERS GIVEN PURGE

Six Accused of Squandering City's Funds on Drinks and Girls.

By The Associated Press

MOSCOW, Sept. 7—The Soviet "purge" today caught six officials at Tashkent, capital of the Uzbek republic in the heart of Asia, on charges of squandering the city's funds on wild drinking debauches with girls from a "rest home."

The Communist party organ Pravda called the Tashkent officials Bourgeois Nationalists and accused them even of slaughtering the prize Arabian horses to provide meat for their revels. Pravda said the six were eliminated from the party but did not specify their fate.

Pravda claimed the officials turned the Communist Party rest home into a "brothel."

Akmal Ikramoff, deposed secretary of the party's central committee was criticized as the political boss of Uzbek in the Tashkent newspaper Truth of the East. The paper said he failed to expose conditions there.

Only last June the head of the Uzbek republic and numerous other officials were removed from office for allegedly stirring up anti-government agitation in middle Asia.

Elsewhere the nation-wide campaign against enemies of the regime went on with no sign of abatement. Officials whose administration of collective farms was described as "overbearing" felt the grim hand of punishment. Already 2 of them have been executed in Leningrad Province and in Georgia.

Ten officials in the Ordjonikidze region apparently have been executed.

Lavar Kaganovitch new commissar for heavy industry, shook up the whole Soviet coal administration today in a drastic effort to

THEY SMOKE MORE CAMELS THAN ANY OTHER CIGARETTE IN THE WORLD
"Camels went 'round the world with me. I'll bet on them any time," famous round-the-world reporter, Miss Dorothy Kilgallen, says. "With Camels, steady smoking's a steady pleasure."

Lobbyists Again.

THE lobbyist, like a witch, must wish he had half the power attributed to him. By repute, there's nothing he can't do.

His latest stroke of evil is delivered in what is known as the sugar quota bill, signed reluctantly by President Roosevelt. The bill, said the President, would be a good one, if it were not for the mark left upon it by a "little group of seaboard refiners who, unfortunately, for many years were able to join forces with domestic producers in the maintenance of a continuing and powerful lobby in the national capitol and elsewhere."

Mr. Roosevelt wasn't just thumping a tub, either. Sugar has been in politics ever since America discovered its sweet tooth. It has been kicked back and forth between the two major parties as much as any single matter.

In 1909, sugar refineries settled out of court for government suits charging tariff evasion by falsifying weights. In 1913 the cry of "Lobby!" was raised by Woodrow Wilson and a congressional investigation found more lobbies. Now, Mr. Roosevelt has pointed his finger at them again.

Lobbies don't just spring into existence like a magician's white rabbits. The sugar lobby represents the intrigue which is intertwined with one of the world's basic commodities. Because sugar is surrounded by restrictions—it is the most regimented crop in existence—it draws lobbyists as it draws flies.

Consumers, who must pay for all this monkey business, have reason to suspect that the golden age of lobbying still lies ahead. If government succeeds in controlling everything, instead of only a few things here and there, Washington will begin to see lobbying as is lobbying.

Where Rescue Begins.

THE NOISE of New York City's primary fight has echoed even to Ohio, where politics is a dead subject at the moment.

Rival Democratic factions are knifing each other for the privilege of trying to beat Mayor LaGuardia in the November election. Dr. Royal S. Copeland is Tammany Hall's candidate, Jeremiah T. Mahoney is the new deal candidate, Republicans who can't swallow LaGuardia are in the middle of the firing.

And what's the firing about? Why, it seems that Sen. Copeland and Mr. Mahoney can't agree on national issues. One is a Democrat, and the other one's a new dealer. Sen. Copeland, in other words, has been unfaithful to Franklin D. Roosevelt and Mr. Mahoney's willing to be faithful, if he gets a chance. They're having a white hot campaign over it.

Some day there will be a municipal campaign in which the candidates won't be expected to talk about a thing, except their qualifications to conduct the affairs of the city honestly and intelligently. It won't make a whit of difference what they think about the price of paper clips in Fiddleville, unless that's where they live. It's bound to happen; Americans can't be crazy about local government forever—or can they?

Hatred and Distrust.

TODAY'S editorial on the folly of war is written by Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek of China. It originally was part of an interview in which he called on the United States and other powers to halt the Sino-Japanese war to protect their own rights. "China," the general said, "happens to be fighting, with inadequate equipment, not only its own battle, but the battle of all those nations who base their lives on the sanctity and validity of treaties and especially those whose large commercial interests in China are being systematically destroyed and their representatives driven away."

Then he said:

"Japan is steadily wiping out her own investments in China and destroying her own commercial opportunities in a land where wise, statesmanlike and courteous treatment on her part would undoubtedly have given her almost a monopoly of trade, as well as the high respect of China's great population of 400,000,000. Instead of admiration she has rooted hatred and distrust deep in the Chinese heart and mind."

Japanese business men, whose interests are supposed to be served by the Japanese militarists (who are, of course, very costly) will set their teeth a little harder if they happen to run across Gen. Chiang's appraisal of what could have happened without the expense of a war.

A mother writing to a child expert says she worries over her seven-year-old son's inability to tell the truth. In view of the fact that youngsters are instinctive imitators, it might be interesting and helpful for her to ascertain just where and how he acquired the habit.

According to some reports, Hitler sleeps fitfully, if at all, in fear of revengeful enemies. After all, there might have been some advantage to being satisfied with life as a paper-hanger.

John L. Lewis Hurls Challenge at President and All the Processes of Orderly Government.

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7 — A challenge to the government of the United States, to President Roosevelt and all the processes of government insofar as they affect labor has been flung by John L. Lewis, labor's dictator in America, and the challenge has gone unanswered.

Mr. Lewis, boasting a political strength of 3,000,000 votes and charging that he and his associates put President Roosevelt into power, now demands, in effect, that the government formally abandon its historic concept of neutrality and impartiality as between groups and become completely a government by a special class and for a special class.

The C.I.O. has had 90 per cent control for some time of the machinery of government as it relates to labor. Mr Roosevelt has not objected to the use of the name of his office on literature to help membership campaigns from the C.I.O. Mr. Roosevelt has put through cool legislation enabling John Lewis to get the "check-off" on labor dues, which meant an increase in millions of dollars for the Lewis war chest Much of the *C.I.O. strength of today is di*rectly traceable to White House encouragement or the lack of a restraining hand by new deal officials in permitting C.I.O. organizers to defy the laws of the land both in membership drives and in strikes.

Almost any complaint the C.I.O makes is formally listed nowadays by the national labor relations board and hearings are dominated by the C.I.O Recently the board went so far as to issue an order favoring the C.I.O and disregarding a federal court decision which had upheld an A. F. of L. contract. The C.I.O influence with Secretary Perkins in the auto strike negotiations was considerable and for several months the secretary expressed doubts about the illegality of the "sit-down" strike, which certainly lent moral weight to the use of that weapon. Even President Roosevelt, although importuned on every side to say something, never has uttered a single word in condemnation of the "sit-down" strike. Last week, the United Automobile Workers, an integral part of the C.I.O., formally adopted a resolution at its convention "approving the use of the "sit-down" strike hereafter as a weapon of labor war.

Mr. Lewis Ungrateful

Mr. Lewis is really ungrateful to the new deal which has helped him, but, like all extremists, he wants 100 per cent partisanship. He doesn't like the fact that the President said something recently about "a plague on both your houses" indicating a desire to be regarded as neutral To this Mr. Lewis now objects as he utters the following challenge

"It ill becomes one who has supped at labor's table and who has been sheltered in labor's house to curse with equal fervor and fine impartiality both labor and its adversaries when they become locked in deadly embrace."

No labor leader in recent years has ever ventured to reprimand a President of the United States so boldly and so directly. Mr. Roosevelt, of course, to a certain extent invited just such an embarrassing situation when he allowed his campaign managers last year to accept contributions of upward of $500,000, and some reports declare it was much larger, from a single group in the electorate, to say nothing of the fact that, when the Democratic national committee ran short of money, it borrowed $50,000 from the C.I.O. and still has that loan unpaid.

Mr. Lewis intends to hold Mr Roosevelt and his party to a strict accountability. His speech of last week had in it the following significant paragraph.

"Labor next year cannot avoid the necessity of a political assay of the work and deeds of its so-called friends and its political beneficiaries. It must determine who are its friends in the arena of politics as elsewhere. It feels that its cause is just and that its friends should not view its struggle with neutral detachment or in lone constant criticism of its activities. Those who chant their praises of democracy but who lose no chance to drive their knives into labor's defenseless back must feel the weight of labor's woe even as its open adversaries must ever feel the thrust of labor's power."

Who else but Mr Roosevelt, in his speech in North Carolina, chanted the praises of "democracy"? Mr. Lewis has a definite technique. He has had Mr. Roosevelt's support, but he detected in the "plague on both your houses" a wavering note. It meant that Mr. Roosevelt might any day cease to be a partisan for the C.I.O and become neutral. So Mr. Lewis, believing that Mr. Roosevelt can be bullied into maintaining a position of favoritism for the C.I.O. starts an open attack and in it uses his best weapon—a reminder of political obligation and political benefits received by Mr. Roosevelt from the C.I.O.

Forgets Some Acts

Nor is Mr. Lewis satisfied with the technical contention that the federal government has no jurisdiction over some of the violence

Labor Board's Ruling in Electrical Workers and A.F.L. Case Provides One of Country's Puzzles.

By DOROTHY THOMPSON

NEW YORK, Sept. 7—To an outsider, the struggle between the national labor relations board and the American Federation of Labor over the closed shop contract between the Brotherhood of Electrical Workers and the National Electric Products Corporation is confusing to say the least

The National Electric Products Corporation, which is located at Ambridge, Pa., signed a contract with the A.F.L. affiliate. It established the "closed shop," which means that any one working in that plant has to join the union. The national labor relations board intervened with the opinion that the company had discriminated against the C.I.O. which has been trying to organize the same plant; that it signed the contract with the A.F.L. union before an election had been held to determine whether the union really represents a majority. All this after a United States supreme court had upheld the contract between the company and the A. F. L. There is, therefore, a conflicting opinion between a federal court and the National Labor Relations Board

It is not surprising to read that the judge who rendered the first decision, upholding the A.F.L., has allowed an appeal from his ruling. Our guess is that he would like to know himself what another and higher judge thinks that the Wagner labor relations act means. Certainly a lot of the rest of us would like to know what it means.

Because Senator Wagner's labor relations act does not stipulate that an election must be called to determine a majority before a trade union can sign a contract for a closed shop, or before it can be recognized as the sole collective bargaining agency for the workers The act says that an election may be held. It does not make it clear whether a majority means a majority of those voting or a majority of those eligible. It doesn't provide, either, when the election must be held. The present technique is for a trade union to call a strike and hold off an election until such a point when they think they can win it through the desire of the workers to get back and earn a living for their families This whole technique makes the charges of "coercion" against the companies pretty hypocritical. There has been plenty of anti-union coercion by the companies, but this is also coercion

In this case the labor relations board demanded that both competing trade unions have a chance to be heard. That's reasonable But whether the grounds of challenging the first decision are quite so reasonable is a question. The newspaper reports seem to indicate that the A.F.L. decision is suspicious largely because the company seems to be satisfied with it, or to prefer it to a contract with the C.I.O. The national labor relations board apparently is of the opinion that if the company likes a union that is ipso facto sufficient reason to believe that the workers have been coerced into joining it. On the other hand, any closed shop agreement means a coercion of part of the workers—the minority.

Contracts have been signed with the C.I.O in which no elections have been held. Contracts have been decreed in favor of the C.I.O. when a majority of employes have refrained from voting at all. The point is that every decision is arbitrary. The law lays down no procedure to determine what is what. It leaves it up to the board. The law makes no provision whatever for minority representation. It makes no provision for regular elections, provides no mechanism whereby employes, once the die is cast, can rescind their action if they are not satisfied. And the result is that even the courts don't know what the law really means.

This gives altogether too much power into the hands of the board, whose function is not juridical or legislative. If the board happens to be prejudiced in favor of the A.F.L. they can rig things in its favor. If it happens to be prejudiced in favor of the C.I.O. it can make things hard for the A.F.L. With so ambiguous a law, any kind of labor organization could be put over on the workers of this country with the connivance of the labor relations board.

I am not suggesting that this is being done. I am suggesting that it could be done, as long as the law is as unclear as it now is. The fact that is could be done ought to be enough for any one who believes in government by law and not by arbitrary rulings.

Fight Probably Over

Signs Indicate President Will Not Renew His Effort To Remodel the Supreme Court.

By PRESTON GROVER

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—Folks in these parts are convinced the President will renew the fight to remodel the supreme court, but there is some recent history to indicate the contrary.

President Roosevelt has had two previous defeats on important issues. In 1934 he submitted the St Lawrence power and navigation treaty with Canada to the senate for ratification. A majority of the senate was for it, 46 to 42., but that was not the required, two-thirds majority. So he lost.

Again in 1935 the first thing taken up by congress in January was the protocol of adherence to the world court. Again the President appealed for ratification. Again a majority of the senate was for it, but not a two-thirds majority. The vote was 52 to 36, lacking only seven votes of ratification.

Waterway A Dead Letter.

In each instance there were intimations the President would again submit the proposals for ratification.

He has repeatedly brought up the St. Lawrence questions in speeches, in letters and in replies to questions at press conferences But five sessions of congress have slipped by without his again submitting the treaty for ratification.

It rests quietly in the hands of the senate foreign relations committee, listed for the present as a dead letter. The President himself has publicly recognized that, in its present form, it likely would not be acceptable. In a letter to Representative Andrews of New York, made public May 26 this year, the President said "exploratory conversations" were continuing in the hope of drafting a new treaty under which the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence waterway could be opened and power development undertaken.

World Court Dropped.

While the margin of defeat was narrower in the world court vote, the effect was almost to blot out the issue. The President made no comment at a press conference following defeat of the proposal, other than to say he would thank the late Majority Leader Robinson for his valiant fight in its behalf.

World court adherence, pledged in the 1932 Democratic platform, was not mentioned in the 1936 platform.

Now the President has suffered another defeat, on the supreme court bill. In the message given out at the time he signed the limited court revision bill passed by congress, he implied he would fight for the balance of his original proposal. But he did not say so in such certain words that retreat would be later impossible.

With the supreme court bill he is in the same position as with the world court protocol and the St. Lawrence treaty. He is not pledged to a renewal of the effort. Sincere predictions can be heard here on either side—that it will be revived, or that it is dead forever.

Obviously the answer lies in the amount of brimstone put under members of congress by opposing forces.

Corporations sued by stockholders for restitution of company dollars contributed to the Democratic national committee can reply that they were compelled to give the money by agencies of the federal government.

The publication of the De Luxe Presidential Edition of the Democratic Campaign book, autographed by Mr Roosevelt, may not have been Jim Farley's idea in the beginning, but he was behind it not only as chairman of the Democratic national committee but as postmaster general.

Representative Snell Republican minority leader, has placed before Mr. Cummings, the attorney general, a great deal of evidence illustrating the practices of the solicitors; also giving names of corporations sandbagged into buying copies.

Although the Democratic national committee assured the corporations that a hole through the corrupt practices act had been found, many corporations appear not to have taken the advice of their own counsel or, having taken it, still have thought it advisable to do what the solicitors demanded. The law runs against them. It was regarded as bad public policy to permit corporations as such to make donations to the campaign expenses of candidates.

The corporations did not expose themselves to prosecution until there was a conspiracy to force them to do so. If this book business is as illegal as it is infamous, the corporations did not have a willing part in it and can plead that they were the victims of a governmental party onslaught upon them to get their money.

A good deal of Mr. Snell's evidence, which Mr. Cummings has, reveals that reluctant buyers were told that it would be bad for them if they did not come across, and there are affidavits to prove that it was bad. Governmental agencies followed up the book solicitors, and the persons who did not buy found that they were in hot water.

If some stockholders, suing for restoration of the money used in buying the books, obtain judgment against corporation officers who would have avoided the offense if they thought it safe to do so, Mr. Cummings will find it very difficult not to bring action against the real offenders, the conspirators who put on the heat. A number of his official associates in Washington will not like it, but he will carry a tremendous personal and professional responsibility if he tries to whitewash Mr Farley's book selling.—Chicago Tribune.

In New York

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK Sept. 7—Perhaps no one in the business of writing had such a skyrocketing upercut and fell with such a dull plink as the wildly coiffed Joan Lowell. Whether or not Joan's widely discussed and doubted book, "Cradle of the Deep," was authentic makes little difference now.

It was a lively liver-shaker in a day when publishing books seemed a bit moribund. And Joan became one of the sure-fire head-turners in the cafes and at first nights, as much so indeed as the enormously publicized Libby Holman, whom she resembled, is at the moment.

Joan married and was divorced from the playwright Thompson Buchanan. And she embarked on another voyage around the world in a leaky tub that got no further than Sandy Hook Then somehow her star of destiny slid into eclipse and she was heard from only at intervals.

Now it develops Joan has not only said good-bye to literature forever, but also to America in general and New York in particular She is in Guarajus, Brazil, running a health station for the government and is tanned to the copper bronze of an Indian.

Not many writers have winnowed as much fame with such slight effort as Dorothy Parker. Her published works, chiefly poetry, are less than a half dozen thin volumes, and her articles in Vanity Fair and the New Yorker were always scant. Much of her celebrity, it is true, came from her wise-cracks, any number of which were not really hers. But she was a good peg to hang them on. Anyway there are few writers in such demand. An article or a poem from her will joust an editorial room out of it deepest dolor. And her popularity is as large in England as in America.

To many, Postmaster General Farley is the No 1 Human Enigma of politics. Even his bitterest enemies have to admit he has admirable qualities according to social standards. He does not drink, smoke, use profanity, and no one hears him tell an off-color story, even in relaxing moments with intimates. And he is about the most devoted family man anywhere. Farley has perhaps the greatest capacity extant for remembering faces and names. He never misses fire, no matter how much time has elapsed between meetings. There are, of course, any number who have nothing but jeers for his record as a boxing official and for certain tricks in politics, but usually even his detractors wind up tossing him a posy or so.

Manhattan's most calloused week-end atheist is the Irish litterateur, Ernest Boyd. He has been a leader in the growing thought New York is the best possible summer resort. He refuses all invitations from friends to country homes for a week, week-end or even a day. He prefers to air his luxurious red beard in the breezes of Washington Square or in air conditioned cafes thereabouts. Boyd's beard along with that of Jo Davidson, the sculptor, are the only ones left in town.

Soliloquy: Most of us who drift to New York from the congenial places soon find ourselves shrinking from human contact. This aloofness is acquired almost unconsciously and follows the succession of rebuffs in trying to establish the same plane of familiarity we knew out yonder. The Happy Jacks, so well known to smaller communities, with a friendly word and smile for everyone, meet only the frosty glance here. In no city so longs for a touch of friendliness. Like every large city suspicion is in the air Most of us regard those who make our acquaintance and have not been vouched for as potential confidence folk. And the worst of it is they usually are.

Emancipation Coming?

MEN'S CLOTHES have hardly changed in a century. The only radical change—though it is a gross exaggeration to define it thus—in men's clothing in the 20th century has been the switch from oversized coats and undersized trousers to undersized coats and oversized trousers, according to Hal G. Vermes in the Rotarian magazine.

But when and how will these 'slaves of fashion" emancipate themselves? Just what should be done about it? Mr. Vermes offers a few suggestions:

"In consideration of the extreme sensitivity of the conservative males of my acquaintance, and having no malicious desire to shock my own sex, I shall first make a very gentle suggestion: we men should shear at least a foot from the length of our topcoats. And right here we must accept the incontrovertible fact that men wear entirely too much clothing. They can keep warm in winter with half the bulk. Scientists tell us that two thin garments are warmer than one thick one. Thus we men can comfortably wear lighter clothing without undue exposure to the elements.

"Let us also shear off that useless appendage, the shirt-tail," he urges "And snip off the buttons on our coat-sleeves. And the cuffs from our trousers, which are simply collectors of dust, dirt, grass, and bits of paper.

"And away with the double-breasted coat! Away with the stiff-bosomed dress shirt; away with stiff straw hats, stiff top hats, stiff heavy brogues Let us remove once and for all the stiffness which results in stuffiness.

"With another clip of the shears, let us do away with long trousers; after an hour's wear unless we stand stiff-kneed and refuse to sit down—they make us look as if we had suddenly succumbed to a severe case of mumps in the lower extremities. I propose that we should wear knickerbockers. To my mind there is nothing more comfortable.

"On the beach, we men are showing signs of sanity. There we are adopting comfortable attire But elsewhere, we seem to think that when we show our Adam's apples, we are debauched And to disclose the male ankle is considered the height of daring While it is undeniably true that not many people really care to look at a man's Adam's apple nor even his ankle, yet I insist that the sacrifice is too great to make in the name of "comfort."

COURT TO TEST POWER POLICY

Sale of TVA Current and Federal Aid to City Plants Issues To Be Decided.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7—Attorneys for the TVA, PWA and the power commission predicted today that the supreme court will settle two major points of President Roosevelt's power program in the term beginning Oct. 4.

The questions, which have been fought back and forth between the federal government and private utilities for four years, are:

1. May the Tennessee valley authority sell power in unrestricted competition with private companies?

2. May the government help municipalities finance power plants to operate in competition with private companies?

Would Clear Way

Government victories in the supreme court, some federal officials said, would clear the way basically for any activity in the power field the federal or state governments should desire. After that, they said, it would just be a question of how far the governments chose to go.

The legal warfare may be renewed today in Philadelphia, where the federal power commission has been ordered to establish the worth of its investigation of service charges made by subsidiaries of the associated gas group.

Major cases involving the government's power policy now pending include:

"The 19 companies case:" A three-judge district court in Tennessee, created under the newly-enacted judiciary reorganization act, will hear in October arguments that the TVA should be barred from distributing its power in competition with utilities. Attorneys say the case should reach the supreme court by the first of the year.

The public works administration power cases: The point at issue is whether the federal government can lend money to a city to build a power plant in competition with private industry.

Arguments in November

The supreme court will hear arguments early in November concerning such loans made to five Alabama cities by the PWA. Lawyers predicted that the suit of the Duke Power Co., against the Buzzard's Roost project of Greenwood county, S. C., will be argued at the same time.

The public utilities holding company case: The Electric Bond & Share Co., has challenged the government's right to require registration with the securities and exchange commission. The case may reach the supreme court this session.

Associated Gas subsidiaries in Pennsylvania: The companies challenge the power commission's right to hold hearings and make an investigation of service charges paid out by the companies.

The new river case: This is part of a six-year battle in which the Appalachian Electric Power Co. has challenged federal regulation of dam-building on what the company contends is a non-navigable stream. This case is before the federal district court here.

LAWRENCE WRITES ON CAPITAL SITUATION

that occurs in strikes. Speaking of disorders in the recent steel strike, Mr. Lewis said:

"The murder of these unarmed men has never been publicly rebuked by any authoritative officer of the state or federal government. Some of them, in extenuation, plead lack of jurisdiction, but murder as a crime against the moral code can always be rebuked without regard to the niceties of legalistic jurisdiction by those who profess to be keepers of the public conscience."

Mr. Lewis conveniently forgets the acts of violence of members of his own group, some of whom are now indicted for dynamiting and other crimes. Other groups, incidentally, have asked the President in vain to do a little rebuking of C. I. O. terrorism and have used the same argument, namely that technical jurisdiction should not stand in the way of the use of the moral power of the presidential office to condemn wrongdoing, no matter by whom committed, in labor warfare.

In fairness to Mr. Lewis as well as the President, it should be noted that public opinion recently called on President Roosevelt to denounce the "sit-down" strike, even though technically it was being regarded as a state affair and not within the federal jurisdiction. The senate responded by the passage of such a resolution, but the administration played John Lewis' game and killed the same resolution in the house of representatives and, moreover, the President never has said publicly a word in condemnation of the "sit-down" strike. The President has been an effective partisan of the C.I.O., and yet Mr. Lewis demands more. The incident will be taken by many to illustrate the dangers of class partisanship inside the government.

What would Grover Cleveland, another Democratic President, have done with a challenge by a labor leader like John Lewis? It's more than 50 years since Cleveland was in the White House, so the present generation may not recall his sturdy and courageous fight against attempted usurpation of authority by labor in blocking the United States mails. Mr. Roosevelt has since reversed Mr. Cleveland's rule and let the C.I.O. block the mails.

Wilson's Attitude

But Woodrow Wilson, under whom Mr. Roosevelt served, was President within the memory of many now in official life. What would Mr. Wilson say if he were confronted with the same crisis? The answer is to be found in a message to congress on Dec. 2, 1919, when President Wilson wrote:

"The right of individuals to strike is inviolate and ought not to be interfered with by any process of government, but there is a predominant right, and that is the right of the government to protect all of its people and to assert its power and majesty against the challenge of any class. The government, when it asserts that right, seeks not to antagonize a class, but simply to defend the right of the whole people against the irreparable harm and injury that might be done by the attempt by any class to usurp a power that only government itself has a right to exercise as a protection to all."

Mr. Wilson was no friend of the "economic royalists." He earned their ill-will. He earned, on the other hand, and retained the respect and admiration of labor. He was fair-minded and never lost sight of the true function of government as an impartial agency acting in behalf of all the people and not just the campaign contributors. Mr. Wilson, in the same message to congress, made this important declaration:

"Labor not only is entitled to an adequate wage, but capital should receive a reasonable return upon its investment and is entitled to protection at the hands of the government in every emergency.

"No government worthy of the name can 'play' these elements against each other, for there is a mutuality of interest between them which the government must seek to express and safeguard at all cost."

The voice of a great Democratic President still lives in the minds and hearts of true progressives of the Democratic faith, but it is repudiated as "old-fashioned" by the fascist radicals who dominate the new deal and who encourage usurpation of governmental power by special groups with political potentiality and adequate campaign funds to help them win national elections.

MISS MARY LOUISE WINTERS, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Winters of 126 Franconia avenue, became the bride of Roy Dale Converse, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Converse of 156 Dix avenue, in an open church service Sunday morning at Forest Lawn Presbyterian church. The pastor, Rev. John A. Carriker read the single ring service at 11 o'clock, following the morning worship hour.

Large baskets of pastel-tinted gladioli banked with palms adorned the altar and formed a background for the two tall seven-branch candelabra holding lighted tapers. Mrs. Harriet Davis at the organ, played a program of nuptial music and the wedding march. She played "O, Promise Me," by DeKoven, "I Love You Truly," Bond, and the march from Wagner's "Lohengrin."

Cousin Is Maid of Honor

The bride's maid of honor was her cousin, Miss Evelyn Little of Indianapolis, and Marilyn Dengler, also a cousin, was her flower girl. John Caldwell Jr. was Mr. Converse's best man, and ushering were Harry Winters, the bride's brother, and John Leibenderfer, cousin of the bridegroom.

The v-shape neck had a narrow satin ruffle which was repeated on the cuffs of the long sleeves. Her fingertip veil was held to her head with a white satin halo and she carried a bouquet of the bride's roses.

Her cap matched the blue lace of her gown and she carried a bouquet of blue and pink asters tied with a large pink bow. The flower girl's gown, made similar in style, was of pink lace over blue, and her cap was of pink lace. Her flowers matched the bouquet carried by Miss Little.

The bride's mother chose a redingote medal in a navy blue net embroidered in white and she was blue and white accessories. Mrs. Converse was in a gown of navy blue metallic crepe and wore blue accessories. Both were shoulder corsages of white asters.

After the ceremony there was an informal reception and wedding dinner at Ringer's Inn on the Prospect pike. Covers were placed for 20 at a table centered with a three-tiered wedding cake decorated with pink roses and a miniature bride and bridegroom, and garden flowers at either side completed the decorative note.

Mr. and Mrs. Converse will tour Michigan, Canada and the east on their wedding trip, returning home by way of Niagara Falls. The bride chose for traveling a brown tailored suit with which she wore a blouse in an aqua shade, and brown accessories. ## Kitchen Training Urged for Daughter's Welfare

Friends in Marion: That ... adage about sparing ... should be altered to read: ... homemaking training and ... daughter."

... many times I am reminded ... own early training, when I ... visit in some home where the busy mother fairly implores her heedless child to "please set the table and help mother." Usually daughter flies out with her hi-li ball and mother and I set the table.

Perhaps some of you wise mothers have been drawing daughter into the household routine during vacation days. I can hear others among you protesting that the child "is only young once" and that responsibilities should come later. But daughter quickly forms the habit of leaving her room untidy and her new coat in a heap on the floor, knowing that mother will pick both up, even under protest.

There are various ways of interesting daughter in home responsibilities. It does require tactful study to accomplish this and often the out-of-patience mother makes the fatal mistake of taking over the job, either before daughter starts or while she is still struggling with dusting, dishes or cookery. That, of course, is fatal to a second attempt.

May Like Cooking

Many a youngster who balks at dishes or dusting will respond to the creative appeal of cookery. Nine times out of ten, if mother is patient with the inexperienced worker, a young culinary artist will develop in the family.

Let the child watch the making of some simple dish like muffins, a plain cake, or a pudding, explaining each process carefully. Daughter can be the "apprentice," and when she asks to beat the eggs, or sift the flour, put her into an apron and don't be too distressed when she sloshes the mixture over herself, or the floor.

Next time, give her the recipe, help to assemble the ingredients and then (most importantly), stay out of the kitchen, remaining "on call" in another part of the house. This is the critical time when "bossing" will kill the young cook's interest.

Faced by the responsibility of mixing and preparing some dish, particularly if it is one of daddy's favorites, the junior cook is very apt to do a good job. If she falls down—as so many older cooks often do, try to offer criticism in a kindly way that will not hurt her feelings. Suggest tactfully:

"Now next time, I think we better have the oven a little bit lower," rather than bemoaning the waste in a scorched cake.

A tremendous incentive to fostering this cookery instinct is a personal recipe book for daughter, or her own card index file. I still own such a book, containing many choice family recipes, and on the first page is written in round inky letters: "When started, aged eight."

File Them Away

As daughter masters each recipe, let us include it in the file, and her responsive pride will more than repay you for anxious moments and a few spoiled dishes. Clip recipes which you think would interest her, and consult her occasionally on the planning of daily menus. You will find her ideas more constructive than her father's when that "what shall we eat" problem bobs up.

Many youngsters these days balk at household tasks just because their playmates have no responsibilities at home. Make it a point to tell other mothers about your daughter's kitchen experiments, and perhaps they, too, will be inspired. Sometimes judicious bragging is justified.

Recently I read about six-year-old Barbara Jenkins of Denver, Colo., who learned to patty-cake baker-man with real dough. She is considered one of the nation's most accomplished cooks, for she prepares 145 different dishes from memory, some of which she invented.

Recently she prepared breakfast for Governor and Mrs. Ed Johnson of Colorado and served her own jelly. Just to prove she was a real girl, she skipped rope while the meal cooked. An electric stove alarm told her when each course was done.

One of Barbara's specialties is a one-egg batter, which she mixes in a jiffy, later turning it into any one of seven kinds of cake. She can cook a full-course dinner in a half-hour, without spotting her apron or wasting a speck of food. Barbara makes A grades in school and for diversion, she is dictating a new cookbook to her mother.

While culinary prodigies cannot grow in every family, the results of wise encouragement may produce many surprises. And daughter will thank you in later years.

And as for brother, before he comes around to sample the results o fthe kitchen triumphs, suggest that he earn his allowance by weeding the garden, or clearing the playroom!

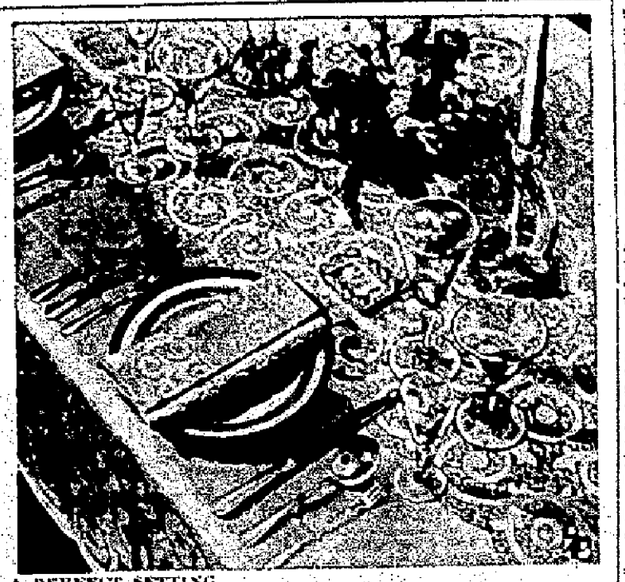
Hostess Rules As Queen During Formal Dinner



A PERFECT SETTING

Bouquets should be low, candles tall. Silver is placed so the guest uses the outer pieces first. The wine glass to be used first is closest to the silver at the right, the others slightly back. The water glass is directly above the knife.

BY MRS. ALEXANDER GEORGE
Associated Press Writer

It's a pause that entices—that quiet moment after the announcement: "Dinner is served."

For the formal dinner is the most decorous of social functions. It signifies table appointments as smart or elegant as the hostess can provide. And it is at this event, which climaxes the hostess's entertainment calendar, that she rules like a queen in her home.

Because the formal dinner is such a precise affair, let's go over some of the fine points of the preparations.

The table cloth should be placed so that the center crease runs exactly down the middle of the table. To be etiquet-perfect, it should extend at least 12 inches over the edges of the table. Dinner-size napkins, approximately 27 inches square, should match it.

The center-piece should be designed to fit the size and shape of the table. If it is too high, guests will be forced to peer over and around it to converse with others opposite them. If candles are used they should be tall enough so the glare doesn't fall in anybody's eyes.

The well-set table never looks cluttered. All the appointments are placed evenly and symmetrically. (You can determine this by standing away and viewing the table from all angles.)

Space For Covers

Each "cover"—space allotted to the individual guest—should be at least 30 inches wide ... to give plenty of elbow room.

Set the service plate in the center of the cover. On is right (as is illustrated) place the dinner knife, with the sharp edge toward the center of the plate. Put the soup spoon next. (If bouillon or cream soup spoons are to be used for soups served in bouillon cups, substitute a bouillon spoon.) The cocktail fork goes on the outside. It's the only fork, by the way, that ever goes to the right of the plate when a full dinner service is used.

Working outside in for the works at the left of the cover are the fish fork, the large fork for the main course and the salad fork next to the plate.

Dessert Spoons Later

Dessert forks or spoons are not put on the table, but are passed when that course is served. Demitasse spoons do not appear, either, until later—on the saucers of small cups of coffee. (Often the demitasse is not served until guests have left the table and reassembled in the living room.)

All the silver on the table should be in a straight line and set in one and a half inches from the edge.

Napkins are folded with the selvage edge next to the edge of the table. They may be placed either on the service plate or at the left of the forks.

Since butter is not served with the formal meal, as a general thing, bread and butter plates are not included in the service. Ash trays may be put directly above each plate or above and between two covers. The same holds for salt and pepper containers.)

Stemmed glassware is best for formal occasions. Goblets should be placed an inch beyond the tips of the silver at the right of the cover. The water glass—which should be filled just before the guests are seated — goes directly above the knife.

If wines are served, the glasses should be arranged in the order of their use—with the first (and the smallest) nearest the cocktail fork. Wine never is poured until the course which it accompanies has been served.

RECIPE REQUESTS ANSWERED HERE

Time For Pears

Pears are inexpensive at this season and they make a welcome addition to the daily menus.

Baked pears are delicious served with or without cream, either hot or cold. Select ripe pears of uniform size, pare and cut in half, lengthwise. Place in a baking dish rubbed with shortening and pour over the halves one-half cup of white table syrup, one-half cup warm water, and a sprinkling of nutmeg. One or two sticks of cinnamon may be added.

Bake in a moderate oven 350 degrees, or until the pears are tender. Baste frequently with the syrup.

Pear Bread Pudding

Rub a deep baking pan with shortening and cover the bottom with finely-broken dried bread, or with bread crumbs to the depth of one inch. Cover the crumbs with a layer of thinly-sliced pears. Season with nutmeg and cinnamon.

Repeat and when the pan is almost full, pour over this one cup of white table syrup, mixed with one-half cup brown sugar and one cup of water stirred together. Bake in a slow oven, 300 degrees, for one hour. Serve with a thin custard sauce.

This recipe may be varied with other fruit. Try using half thinly-sliced bananas and half pears. Add, serve thinly sliced bananas in the custard sauce as well.

Fresh Corn Bread

One cup sifted flour, one tablespoon sugar, one and one-half teaspoons salt, two teaspoons baking powder, two and one-half cups fresh sweet corn, cut and scraped from the cob, (or use canned, whole corn kernels); one well beaten egg, one-fourth cup melted shortening.

Sift flour with sugar, salt and baking powder. Add to corn gradually mixing well. Add beaten egg to corn mixture, then add melted shortening. Pour into a square greased baking dish. Bake in a hot oven 400 degrees F. thirty minutes or until done.

Quick Dessert

One cup sugar, three stiffly beaten egg whites, six graham crackers, crushed fine, one cup chopped walnut meats, one-half pound chopped dates, one teaspoon vanilla.

Add the sugar gradually to the stiffly beaten egg whites. Then add cracker crumbs, nut meats, dates and flavoring. Pour into a well buttered pie dish. Bake in a moderate oven 350 degrees thirty minutes. Break into small pieces with a fork and serve with whipped cream.

Quince Honey

Three large, or four medium-sized quinces yield six glasses of honey. Peel and core the quinces; quarter and remove seeds. Place quinces in one pint water and bring to a boil. Add three pints sugar. Boil fifteen minutes.

Deep Fat Fried Salmon

Wash salmon steaks in cold water, dry, and dip in flour and beaten egg, which has been seasoned with salt and pepper. Lay in a frying basket and lower into deep hot fat. Turn to brown evenly and fry until the exterior is golden brown. Drain on brown paper, or paper towels and serve with tartar sauce and thin lemon slices.

Use the same method for frying filets of lemon sole or halibut.

Tomato Jam

One quart of tomatoes, peeled, cored and sliced. Add four cups of sugar and the juice and grated rind of one lemon. Boil one-half to three-quarters of an hour, or until thick. Double the recipe for eight generous glasses. This is an inexpensive appetizer with cold meat.

Peach Ice Cream

One-half cup sugar, one-half cup white syrup, two eggs, one cup milk, one cup light cream, one cup fresh peaches, which have been put through a sieve, and two tablespoons sugar.

Beat the egg whites until stiff, but not dry. Add two tablespoons of sugar gradually, beating to a meringue. Combine milk, cream, sugar, syrup, egg yolks and peaches. Beat until well blended and finally fold in the egg whites.

Freeze as rapidly as possible in automatic refrigerator with indicator turned to highest speed. When partly frozen, blend and beat with a silver or wooden spoon until smooth. When frozen, set indicator at half-way mark.

Lunch Box Sandwich

Lunch box time is here again. Put equal parts of cooked veal and raw carrot through food chopper. Add a little chopped celery, salt, pepper and enough cooked salad dressing to make mixture spread easily between thinly-sliced buttered bread. Lamb also is good in this sandwich.
